MAD DOG KILLED BY POLICEMAN LOCATED

A mad dog this afternoon ran among scores of children playing in Wesley street, Charlestown, snapping viciously right and left, before being shot by Policeman Nash of the City square station. People think it wonderful that nobody was bitten by the animal.

The dog was a mongrel and owned by Mrs. Elizabeth Wilson of No. 11 Wesley street. She noticed that the animal was acting strangely and notified the police. Before an officer arrived the dog got beyond her control and dashed out of the house among scores of children who were playing in the street, it being a school holiday.

Patrolman Nash arrived just in time to save the children. His shouts of warning sent them scurrying indoors. The dog, attracted by the patrolman's brass buttons, sprang at the officer. Nash had his revolver ready, and when he dared the bullet struck the dog right between the eyes.

The dog was a powerful brute, weighing about thirty pounds, and if he had attacked the children many would have been completely at his mercy.

16-YEAR-OLD SKATER RESCUES TWO CHUMS

By risking his own life, Edward Brennan, sixteen years old, son of John Brennan of East street, Dedham, saved the lives of William Rowan, fourteen, and William Wardwell, thirteen, son of Henry L. Wardwell, both of Washington street, Dedham. The trio were skating on Wigwam pond in Dedham. Wardwell fell through the thin ice. Rowan tried to save him but he too went in the water and both floundered about until Brennan pulled them out.

SMITH NEW HEAD OF PRODUCE EXCHANGE

The Boston Fruit and Produce Exchange elected the following officers ofr 1911 at its annual meeting in the Exchange Hall, South Market street: President, Lucius C. Smith; vice-president, Alfred P. Lee; treasurer, Harvey E. Sleeper. Arthur T. Cummings, the retiring president, was given a loaded lamp. Major Fitzgerald came into the hall during the noon hour and spoke briefly on city finances. A dinner was served from 11 to 1:30.

GOODWIN RALLY TO-NIGHT.

Former Councilman Frank A. Goodwin of East Boston will hold his only rally of the municipal campaign to-night in Saratoga hall, East Boston. At Chelsea Hall, D and Silver streets, he will discuss "Big Grafters."

NEWPORT R. I., Jan. 7.—The battleship fleet defending Uncle Sam's Atlantic coast line against the "invading" line of battleships swooping down on it from European waters has won the first point in the war game.

A wireless message received at the station here to-day from the fleet of scout cruisers under command of Rear Admiral Staunton stated that the location of the "intruders" is now definitely known.

The "attacking" battleship fleet is the Atlantic squadron which has been visiting abroad and which is playing a war game trying to reach American shores, without being detected by the American warships guarding the coast. The location of the incoming battleships was not made public.

ATTACKING FLEET IS RUSTLERS SAVED IN BANK WRECK

But for the sudden rush with which the Boston National Specialty sale were put through, the entire deal would probably have been postponed a year or dropped entirely because of the failure of the Carnegie Trust Company in New York to-day. Besides that, William Hepburn Russell would have lost a $25,000 forfeit. The first $35,000 which Mr. Russell had available for closing his contract to buy the team was on deposit at the Carnegie Trust Company.

Under the contract, Mr. Russell had until February 3 to complete the purchase, and at first he expected to wait the full time. But when the big money would have been left in the New York banking house. But the sudden forcing of a syndicate with L. Comer Page of this city with other developments which induced Mr. Russell to hurry through the deal December 18, led him to transfer the money to this city.

Had the deal gone along in the regular course of business—as originally intended—the money would now be tied up with little likelihood of its release before the expiration of the contract. Since John P. Harris, the former owner of the controlling interest, would have made $25,000 on the forfeit price—by failure to complete the sale on time, and was likewise bound by the transaction anyway, it was considered at Boston National League headquarters to-day that he probably would not have extended the period of the contract.

As it is, Mr. Russell is caught with but a small balance in the Carnegie Trust Company.

MANAGER ROWLAND IN SCHENECTADY

Manager Edward W. Rowland, Jr., of the Rosary Company, playing at the Globe Theatre, who was reported missing by the police yesterday, is in Schenectady, N. Y., where he went to join his wife who is playing in a theatrical company. Walter Burgess of the company has received a telephone call from Manager Rowland, saying the latter would be back in time for the "Rosary" organization Sunday night. Rowland explained over the 'phone he had telephoned the theatre before his departure, and was surprised to learn that he had been placed on the missing list.

NO-LICENSE MAN IS SUED FOR $10,000

Notice of a suit has been filed in the Essex County Superior Court at Salem for the $10,000 action of George M. Lambert of Lynn against John C. F. Pillsbury, also of Lynn. Pillsbury was recently a leader in Business Men's License League in the last campaign. He claims that Pillsbury, secretary of the No-License League, published statements which injured his business.

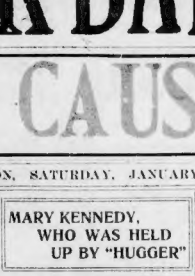
MARY KENNEDY, WHO WAS HELD UP BY "HUGGER"



MARY KENNEDY

LYNN "HUGGER" ATTACKS GIRLS

The feminine residents of Lynn are badly frightened by the repeated appearance of a "Jack the Hugger," who the police of the city are spending every effort to capture. The last person to be attacked by the unknown who uses Mary Kennedy of No. 58 Ingalls street, Lynn, who was sent up on her way from work last night.

The attack took place on Chestnut street opposite St. Joseph's Hall. Miss Kennedy screamed when her assailant seized her, and becoming alarmed, he threw her bodily to a fence and fled. Miss Kennedy is the eleventh complainant.

Some of those who have been attacked declare their assailant was a Greek. Miss Kennedy declares that her assailant was a negro.

CARNEGIE TRUST COMPANY IS CLOSED BY STATE OFFICIALS

NEW YORK, Jan. 7.—The Carnegie Trust Company, with deposits of about $8,900,000, according to its last statement, was closed by State Superintendent of Banks Cheney to-day.

State banking officials immediately took charge of the institution.

The company was chartered in 1906 and had a paid-up capital of $1,500,000 and surplus and profits of about $730,000.

The failure follows a tragedy in which a former president of the bank lost his life.

After closing the bank State Superintendent Cheney issued the following statement: "The Superintendent of Banks has taken possession of the property and business of the Carnegie Trust Company, located at No. 115 Broadway, Borough of Manhattan.

"An examination of the affairs of this company has caused the Superintendent to conclude that it is in an unsound condition to transact business, and that it is not safe for it to continue.

"The examination is not complete and no further statements can be made at the present time."

Depositors to Be Paid.

Joseph T. Howell, president of the company, declared this afternoon that every depositor would be paid in full.

He also stated that the recent failure of the Northern Bank, controlled by Joseph G. Robin, and the mention of Robin's name in connection with the Carnegie Trust Company, precipitated an unwarranted run on the concern which caused the crash.

Mr. Howell said that if the officers of the trust company had been given a little more time enough money would have been on hand to prevent the failure. In connection it was learned that William J. Cummings, the chief stockholder in the concern, was closeted nearly all of last night with Mayor Gaynor at the latter's home in an effort to get the Mayor to use his influence in raising funds needed for to-day.

Once Aided by J. P. Morgan.

The Carnegie Trust Company, since its birth, has had a stormy career. During the financial panic of 1907 it was feared for a time that it would be forced to close its doors, but J. P. Morgan's aid enabled it to continue business.

Ever since that time the eyes of Wall street have been focussed on the institution and many who remembered the excitement before the grand jury last July in connection with loans of ten thousand of dollars on bonds of a paper railway company issued by Charles E. Wellborn, a promoter with a criminal record, were not surprised at to-day's failure.

"Paper" Railroad Project.

In the Spring of 1909, Wellborn was interested in C. Chauncey Lange, a New York curb broker, by C. M. Sexton, who represented himself as Wellborn's financial agent. Sexton painted a brilliant picture of the large amount of money to be made out of one of Wellborn's schemes. It was a railroad project. The ultimate purpose, Sexton and Wellborn explained, was to connect all the coal carrying roads in Pennsylvania into a single system with the Titusville and Northern railroad as the main artery.

Shortly after the launching of the paper railroad, Chapman began to borrow money from the Carnegie Trust Company through President Dickinson until the amount grew to nearly $10,000. Then he was compelled, Chapman declares, to consolidate the various loans into one note and to back this note with collateral of the face value of several hundred thousand dollars.

Joseph B. Reichmann, when he assumed control as president, learned of these operations. He made Chapman secure his loans with all the collateral he could command, and when he added to meet the note at maturity Joseph split against him.

Admits He is Ex-Convict.

Wellborn has been well known in New York financial circles and, in fact, all over the country for eighteen years. He has admitted that he was in the Kings County penitentiary for eighteen months in 1895 for an attempt to swindle a widow in Illinois by mail.

During the 1907 panic the Carnegie Trust, with other institutions, was called upon to pay heavy withdrawals, and the supply of cash was running short. Emile M. Shaw, former secretary of the Treasury, who was then president, invested money in the institution, but he was opposed by the other directors. It was finally determined to send a committee to visit J. P. Morgan and ask his assistance.

The desperate situation was explained to Morgan and he consented to loan $2,000,000 in United States Steel bonds. This enabled the trust company to weather the storm and the doors were kept open throughout the panic.

Charles Custer Dickinson, the company's organizer, died at St. Lukes hospital last May under circumstances which led to an extended investigation. His relatives claimed that his death was caused by injuries he sustained when he fell off his horse in Central Park. An accident insurance company, in which he had large policies, took up the probe.

Killed by Poison Fumes.

It developed that some time before he had attended a chemical test in Pennsylvania and it was said that he died from the effect of a poisonous fume he inhaled there while watching experiments that he expected to result in the transmutation of baser metals into gold.

Charles Lange of Scranton, Pa., in whose laboratory Mr. Dickinson inhaled the poisonous fumes, claimed to hold the secret of transmuting base metals into silver. Mr. Dickinson visited the laboratory to witness experiments. Dr. Lenge claimed to have discovered his transmutation process four years ago. He sought financial aid from a number of wealthy men, among them Mr. Dickinson. Recently nothing has been heard of the alleged discovery.

Reichman ended his connection with

SPANISH KING ESCAPES BOMB

MALAGA, Spain, Jan. 7.—That an attempt was made to kill King Alfonso of Spain with a bomb while he was here on his recent visit to Malaga, known to-day. An infernal machine was thrown just outside the palace as the King arrived. Two persons were injured. Rumors that an attempt had been made on the King's life were denied at the time by the police, who said that a pistol had accidentally exploded.

To-day they admitted that the explosion was caused by a bomb.

The King had come here on his way to Melilla and was accompanied by Premier Canalejas and several ministers of his cabinet.

OFFERS DRASTIC BILL TO KILL SHIP TRUST

WASHINGTON, Jan. 7.—Declaring that the transatlantic shipping combination controls the greatest pest in the world, greater even than the Standard Oil Company ever was, Representative Humphrey of Washington introduced a bill in the House to-day designed to put the monopoly out of business. The Humphrey bill prohibits ships in the combine from entering at or clearing from any port of the United States under penalty of $200 for each passenger and the forfeiture of the merchandise brought by the ship into American ports.

FRENCH CRUISER GOES ASHORE

PARIS, Jan. 7.—The French cruiser Dupetit Thouars went ashore to-day off Brest. Other naval vessels have gone to her assistance.

The Dupetit Thouars is a 14,000 ton, and most powerful vessels of Dreadnought type, has had an adventurous career. The vessel was launched at Brest on July 4, 1909, six weeks after the first attempt had been made. On account of the delays occasioned by various accidents, the final launching of the armored cruiser by the French government $100,000 above the estimated cost of getting the vessel afloat.

ROXBURY CHURCH TO HEAR NEW PASTOR

The Rev. Clarence S. Young, who has accepted a call to the Roxbury Presbyterian Church, will preach his first sermon as pastor there to-morrow morning. He comes from Philadelphia, where he was pastor of the Third Reformed Presbyterian Church. For the last three years he has been instructor in sociology in the School for Christian Workers of the Presbyterian and Reformed Churches and has directed a course of lectures on social problems, in which the three schools established in Philadelphia for the training of deaconesses and other church workers have united.

The AMERICAN gained over 4,000 columns of advertising last year. This nearly equalled the combined gain of the other three leading Boston newspapers having daily and Sunday editions in 1910. It is the New England record and pretty nearly a world's record. The answer is—results. "Nothing succeeds like circulation."

McVEAGH IN REPORTS SHOWS $1,644,600 SAVINGS

WASHINGTON, Jan. 7.—Secretary of the Treasury McVeagh issued a detailed statement to-day showing savings effected in the treasury department during his administration. The total is $1,644,600. Economies totaling $1,932,000 are planned.

INDICT FAMILY AS SHOPLIFTERS

The Suffolk County Grand Jury reported many indictments to-day to Judge Sisk-ress in the Superior Criminal Court. Lena Kaplifer and her daughters, Margaret and Helen, and her sons, Frank and Henry, were indicted on four counts each for larceny and receiving stolen goods. When police raided their home in Newark street in Roxbury, enough goods, said to have been stolen from Roxbury department stores, were taken to fill several wagons. They all pleaded not guilty pleas.

George Ellis was indicted for "conspiracy to defraud." He was formerly clerk at the Hotel Westminster where he rented rooms by the week and held up the men at the desk. He pleaded guilty when arraigned to-day and will be sentenced on Monday.

There were many indictments found against Francis Asbury. He is charged with white slavery, assault and battery, unlawful possession of cocaine and carrying dangerous weapons. When police raided Asbury's home in Middlesex street they found his wife chained to a radiator and it is said she had been starved for days.

FIND SIX BOMB SHELLS IN RUINS

LONDON, Jan. 7.—Confirmation of the coronation plot of the Anarchists who engaged an army of soldiers and police in the battle in Sidney street in Stepney, came to-day when the police found four six inch metal bombs similar to the nine of the anarchistic stronghold.

Evidence that the Anarchists were planning wholesale death to royalty during the coronation of King George next June is now in the hands of Scotland Yard. It is believed that other infernal machines will be discovered in the ruins. The bombs had not been loaded, consequently they were not exploded by the fire which destroyed the building.

Attending King George's coronation will be Czar Nicholas of Russia, Emperor William of Germany, Alfonso of Spain, all of whom with Queen Alexandra will be guests of honor marked for death by the Anarchists.

AUTO MAKERS FORM A NEW ASSOCIATION

ALBANY, N. Y., Jan. 7.—Articles of incorporation were filed under the membership corporation law to-day by the Automobile Manufacturers Association of America. Peugeot, Jackson, Mich., and H. McFarlan, Connersville, Ind.

BOSTON PRIEST HEAD OF FRANCISCAN ORDER

The Rev. Father Eligius Painsdli, O.F.M., of the Franciscan fathers of the Church of St. Leonard of Port St. Maurice, Province of Genoa, Italy, has been appointed provincial of the order for the United States by the Pope and will take up his duties at Boone. The elevation for Fr. Eligius is the greatest honor that the superior could give him in recognition of his life's work of the order. The news came in the form of a rabiegram from Rome. It also means that the importance of the American missions is recognized at Rome. This is the first appointment to be made for the United States. He will have powers equal so far as his order is concerned to those of a bishop in his diocese. The cablegram runs names the province's officers and family or order. There are, it is recalled, three in number. Rev. Fr. Francis Talmadidi, O.F.M., of Boston.

MAYOR HATFIELD IS TO RUN AGAIN

Charles E. Hatfield, mayor of Newton and chairman of the Republican State Committee, announced to-day that he would be a candidate for re-election in that city next year. The policy for several has been that a mayor should be elected to serve for two years and then leave the office. Mayor Hatfield said that he would not be able to complete his work in that time, and therefore would run again.

OUSTING OF LASTERS CAUSES LYNN STRIKE

Twenty-six lasters of the Watson Shoe Company, Broad street, Lynn, are out on a strike because of the discharge of four of their number without first informing the officers of the local lasters' union. The men have been given word that if the men are not reinstated by Monday morning they will go out on a strike generally, which would throw 800 out of employment. There will be a meeting of the Brot's representatives and the lasters' union Monday morning.

CORPSE BEQUEST BARES ROMANCE

The news that William C. Higginson, a New Hampshire merchant had bequeathed his body by will to his wife, Mrs. A. Higginson, formerly of No. 121 Pleasant street, Dorchester, came as a big surprise to the woman's friends when they heard it to-day, as it was the first time that they knew she had a husband.

In a codicil to his will which has just been filed Higginson said:

"I leave my body to Dr. John A. Higginson, No. 121 Pleasant street, Dorchester, Mass. It is my will that my wife have the full and exclusive charge of my body and arrange the burial services and bury me wherever she chooses, but I would prefer to be buried in Lyndon, N. H., where her relatives are buried."

Higginson was buried at Lyndon, N. H., as he requested. His widow is believed to be living there now. When she lived in Dorchester, where she resided for eight or nine years, up to a year ago last Fall, she attracted considerable public attention.

Although she is down by the Boston city directory as "Dr." Higginson, she did not practice medicine so far as her Dorchester acquaintances know. She is a spiritualistic medium and it was her custom to give seances at her home and charge 25 cents admission.

Mrs. Higginson figured in the courts in a suit which she brought against the Boston Elevated Railroad for alleged injuries she received when a fire in the motor of a street car in which she was riding. She lost the case.

The woman had considerable trouble with the boys of the neighborhood. Once she had a number of them in the Dorchester court on the charge that they annoyed her. She built a high wire fence around her property to keep the boys off.

Whether she left Dorchester quietly and rather mysteriously she decided her property to the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals.

DON'T UNDRESS FOR BED and the reasons why will be told in the Sunday AMERICAN.

100 BRAZILIANS PUT TO DEATH

BUENOS AYRES, Arg., Jan. 7.—More than 100 Brazilians who took part in the two recent naval mutinies have been executed out to death, according to traders on the convoy of Brazilians who first ports after the inauguration of President Fonseca.

These traders declared that they had received advices from friends in Rio Janeiro that the Brazilian government had ordered upon a drastic policy of extermination.

The mutineers, who were confined in the prison fortresses upon the islands of Cobras and Villegaignon, and who were supposed to have "died suddenly" from gangrene and sunstroke, were in reality executed by being shot without the formality of trial.

Friends here of Jean Cahida, the leader of the first naval mutiny, who was said to the government, to have died of gangrene, were highly indignant to-day because Cahida had surrendered upon the Brazilian Dreadnoughts upon the promise of the government that he and his followers would not be executed.

Those Brazilians declared that the execution would leave upon the government's skirts serious consequences.

Fear of the spreading revolt which momentarily threatens to grow into a counter movement to overthrow the government, has led President Fonseca and his ministers to take the hardest of measures. Even court-martial trials have been abolished in the case of mutineers.

TRAVELING MEN TO FEAST

The traveling men's auxiliary of the Massachusetts State Pharmaceutical Association will have its semi-annual meeting and banquet at Frost & Dearborn's cafe, No. 6 Pearl street, to-night. Former governor Guild and Guy Hunt will be among the after dinner speakers.

Hammond Is Returning; Talks of Visit to Czar.

BERLIN.—The leaders of the American colonies in Berlin and other large European cities, as well as German captains of industry, were invited here to meet John Hays Hammond, returning from his last mission visit to Russia. "I had a very good time in St. Petersburg," said Mr. Hammond. "Of course the most striking feature of my visit was my reception by the Czar. He talked for a long time. He is a man of extraordinary information. In this respect I doubt if he is second even to Emperor William. To give you an example: We were talking about California. I found the Czar knows as much about the developments in California and the prospects there as I do. In some directions he has even a clearer view. I was surprised, too, to find that the Czar possesses remarkable information on railroad details. One would suppose he has not time to acquire such knowledge." Mr. Hammond has gone to London where he will remain several days, probably, before sailing for New York.

Miguel Awaits Portugal's Call.

VIENNA.—The New Free Presse publishes an interview with Prince Miguel of Braganza, Miguel who was formerly King Manuel of New York, in which he says he has received reports from Portugal representing the situation as becoming so serious that the country will soon wish for a change in government. If Portugal calls him he will obey. He would head the government.

8000 Pairs Men's and Women's Fine Hosiery

25 Cents 45 Cents 65 Cents

Special Sale Women's Hosiery Second Floor.

Special Sale Men's Hosiery First Floor.

There is one well-known House in this country which is the largest importer and dealer in fine hosiery perhaps in the world—certainly in this country. They have hundreds of salesmen all over the United States. The samples they carry amount to from 15,000 to 20,000 pairs. We have bought our selection from the whole lot, our selection amounting to about 8000 pairs, at prices which we think you will agree with us have rarely ever been equalled except in these sales, which we have held each six months now for three seasons, and almost every pair in the lot is worth at least twice the price we ask, and many of them more. They are all perfect goods.

Because of inadequate space on the Street Floor we shall offer the WOMEN'S hosiery in this lot Monday on our SECOND FLOOR. Usually in a sale of this kind we are compelled to say that we cannot exchange goods, but in this particular case if the goods are appreciated as they have been in previous similar sales at their true value, there is likely to be a great crowd of buyers, and therefore we offer to exchange any goods that you buy if in the rush you find you bought goods not suitable for your use, of course provided the exchange is made within a day or two.

The MEN'S goods in this lot will be found on the regular counter on the STREET FLOOR.

Lot 1—Women's Plain Cotton and Lisle in medium, light and heavy weights; medium weight Lisle; light Silk Lisle; split feet in medium and light weight; outsize cotton and lisle; black lisle with lace ankle in a large range of patterns; plain colored silk lisle; black lisle with self and colored embroidery; tan lisle embroidered in self and colors; black and tan lace ankle embroidered. All 50c stockings, many in the lot worth more 25c

Lot 2—Women's finest qualities in Plain Black Lisle and Silk Lisle in medium and light weight black and tan, with the newest embroideries that will be shown for the first time in our spring importations. These are embroidered in self and colors. Also in this lot are a quantity of fine imported sport silk hose in black and tan and colors. Regularly $1.00 . 45c

Lot 3—Women's Fine Black Lisle embroidered in self and colored embroideries, and Openwork hand embroidered patterns entirely new. Also a few spun silks with colored embroideries and a small lot of pure thread colored silks. $1.50 stockings 65c

Purchased from the Great French House of REVILLON FRERES

PARIS, LONDON, NEW YORK, Montreal, Moscow, Winnipeg, Leipzig, Nijni, Bokhara, Edmonton, Nipigon

Last week Chandler & Co. were in the New York market for fine quality Furs, as it is now the end of the wholesale furriers' season. An interview was held with the managers of Revillon Freres New York office. They stated that it was their policy to close out completely all the present season's made-up products, as it is now necessary to put their thousands of operatives on designs, samples, and the products for the coming year—that the quantity on hand this year is very large—that the prices they thought could be made exceedingly low.

This matter was gone into—the managing director of Revillon Freres was wired at Montreal and came to New York. Negotiations were finally brought to a finish, with the result that

Furs to the value of over $60,000 were purchased at the almost unheard-of prices of FIFTY PER CENT. DISCOUNT

PLAN NEW ARRESTS IN PROMOTER WEIL CASE

In connection with the arrest of Victor M. Weil, resident of the Inter-Trust Security Company and the promoter of a number of mining companies, with offices in the Whittredge building, No. 7 Water street, on a charge of using the mails for illegal purposes, there was a rumor in financial circles to-day that other arrests of a startling character might be expected at any time, following instructions from Postmaster-General Frank S. Hitchcock.

Weil is held in $3,000 bail for a hearing next Wednesday. The postoffice inspectors estimated that in ten years he secured something like $1,000,000 from investors.

Postmaster Hitchcock, it was said to-day, proposes to make a big clean-up of all questionable concerns that use the mails for the promotion of their business. It was said that inspectors have been at work for some time looking up the records of other firms against which complaints have been made.

Miss Blanche Morton, Weil's private secretary, who was held in $100 bail, as a witness, reached the office shortly before 9 o'clock to-day. There were several other employes in the rooms and because of the fact that the postoffice authorities had ransacked the place and carried away all the books and papers of the concern nobody seemed to know just what to do.

Popular With Employes.

"I have been employed here about four and one-half years," said Miss Morton, "I have never seen anything in the conduct of Mr. Weil's business that did not look right. I don't believe any of the stories that have been told against him in any way reflect upon his integrity.

"All of his employes like him. He has been kind to us and we propose to stand by him as far as we can until this trouble is over. I don't know whether we shall resume business or not. That is what we are waiting to find out."

Well, who is known to Federal officials as "The King of Boston Wildcat Mining Men," is charged with selling stock in mines that never existed.

The majority of his operations were conducted by mail, and the money he took is said to have been in most cases the savings of people far from wealthy. For eight years the Federal officials had been trying to get substantial evidence against him, and now believe that they have succeeded.

Clergymen Invited.

A number of clergymen are said to have been swindled. The loss of one minister is placed at $1,500.

Up until two years ago Weil had a suite of luxurious offices and a staff of eighteen clerks. At that time Thomas W. Lawson reorganized the curb exchange and Weil's stocks were driven from the list.

The government will base its prosecution principally upon Weil's promotion of the Old Glory Exploration Company stock.

According to Chief Letherman of the Boston postal inspectors, no one who invested in that stock received a cent in dividends.

When investors sought explanations they found it difficult to see Weil personally and he answered complaints in a mining paper he published by telling of accidents at the mines which he said were in the West.

Circular as Evidence.

A circular inveoting Old Glory stock was sent to Hattie Mitchell, box 32, Malden, in October and the government has this as evidence.

Among Weil's stock ruled from the Curb by Lawson was Howell & Little Reduction Company, Weil's best seller, other stocks promoted by Weil through the Inter-Trust Security Company of which he was president were:

Nevada Boston, Goldfield Boston, U. S. Gold Mining Company, Thunder Mountain, Florence Jumbo, Goldfield Black Diamond, Hazel Goldfield, Mohawk Red Top, Rawhide Boston, American Gold Mines Company, Standard Amalgamated Exploration Company, Boston & Suburban Realty Company, Sierra Nevada Leasing Company, Victor M. Weil Exploration Company, Liberty Consolidated Mining & Transportation Company, Massachusetts Idaho, Victoria, Fair and Liberty Bell.

BLANCHE MORTON, HELD AS WITNESS IN THE WEIL CASE

ABRUZZI TO RENEW SUIT

ROME, Jan. 7.—Court circles expect that the death of United States Senator Stephen B. Elkins will be followed by a renewal of the suit of the Duke of the Abruzzi for the hand of his daughter, Miss Katherine B. Elkins.

Senator Elkins's insistence that no rule of Italian court etiquette be permitted to interfere with the full acceptance of his daughter's standing as the Duchess of the Abruzzi is understood to have been the only obstacle to the marriage of the couple and it is expected that a announcement of their engagement soon will be made.

A newspaper man was informed sometime ago by a personal friend of the king of Italy that the objection to the marriage had existed at the court which had not been overcome. It was solely a question of the wish of Miss Elkins and her parents may have influenced her decision.

Abruzzi, who had been permitted by the court to marry the American girl without any restrictions, apparently was unable to overcome the objections raised by Miss Katherine, according to this informant. These are supposed to have been due to the attitude of Queen Dowager Margherita, who has been persistently opposed to the match.

Margherita has a large following, naturally, in the Italian court. Miss Elkins probably believed her situation there would be made too uncomfortable and humiliating to endure.

To the town of Jamesport, Mo., $5,000, the income to be used for the benefit of the poor of the town.

Relief for Aged Ministers.

To the Home for Relief of Aged Protestant Episcopal Ministers, $25,000.

To the Home for Relief of Widows and Orphans of Protestant Episcopal Ministers of Massachusetts, $25,000.

To the trustees of donations of the Protestant Episcopal Churches of Massachusetts, $25,000 for missions.

To the same trustees, $25,000 for foreign missions.

To the Girls' Friendly Society of Boston, $5,000.

To the North End Diet Kitchen, Boston, also South End Diet Kitchen, $500 each.

To trustees of St. Margaret's Home, $25,000.

To the Selectmen of Milton, $5,000, income to be used for the relief of the poor at Christmas time.

To Jamesport, Mo., $15,000 to erect a library and lecture building.

Loyal Legion Remembered.

To Veterans Association Corps of Cadets, Boston, $5,000.

To Massachusetts Commandary of Loyal Legion of United States, $5,000.

To Episcopal City Mission of Boston, $5,000.

The rest and residue of the estate to the Cathedral Church of the diocese of Massachusetts as a trust fund to be known as the Oliver White Peabody fund for a confidential adviser to be will Mrs. Peabody stipulates that she wants $25,000 to go to the All Saints Church of Dorchester for a new Episcopal parish house.

PUPILS SURPRISE TEACHER WITH GIFT

As a token of their appreciation the pupils of the Quincy Grammar school, in Tyler street, presented Miss Bertha Hazzard, the retiring principal of the school with a statue of "The Winged Victory." Miss Hazzard has been principal of the school for four and a half years. The gift was made in the school hall. The pupils arose and sang "The Star Spangled Banner" as she entered, and the presentation speech was made by Alfred White, assistant principal. He also presented Miss Hazard with a gold necklace and a bouquet of roses on behalf of the teachers. Miss Hazzard then made a speech thanking the pupils and teachers for their kindness.

WOMEN IN FLIGHTS AT SAN FRANCISCO

SAN FRANCISCO, Jan. 7.—Sensational high flights such as caused the deaths of Ralph Johnstone and Arch Hoxsey, of the Wright team, were not allowed in the aviation tournament which began here today. Flights by women were a feature. Miss Frances Stewart, Miss Ethel Shorr, Miss Anna Peters and others of the city's social set, asked permission to take aerial rides. Among the aviators who took part were Hubert Latham of France, James Radley of England, Glenn H. Curtiss, Charles F. Willard, Phil O. Parmalee, Walter Brookins and J. A. D. McCurdy.

CREDITORS FILE A BILL FOR ACCOUNTING

A bill in equity has been filed in the Suffolk Superior Court by the creditors of Louis Auerbach of Brookline against Auerbach, Arthur P. French of Brookline and Spencer W. Richardson asking for an accounting. Auerbach's property was assigned on August 29, 1908, to French for the benefit of creditors. The creditors allege that French failed to carry out his trust. They also charge that Richardson has $30,000 worth of stocks which should be divided among them.

CAPITALIST IS SLAIN IN A KANSAS HOTEL

CANEY, Kan., Jan. 7.—T. B. S. Neely, a prominent capitalist of Lima, O., was shot and killed in the Palace Hotel here to-day. The shooting occurred during a dispute over a gas franchise. Neely was president of the Lima Trust Company which has large gas holdings in Indiana and other States. He leaves a wife and two sons.

HELD ON CHARGE OF SHOOTING IN CLUB

Henry Morris says Robert Dunn of No. 822 Dorchester avenue, South Boston, fired five shots at him through a partly closed door at the Bohemian Club, which is at the Strandway and Old Harbor street, and Judge Fallon to-day in the South Boston District Court held Dunn in $500 for the Superior Court on the charge of assault with intent to kill. Dunn, it is claimed, had been refused a drink and came back later and opened fire on Morris, who is a club employe.

OPEN BIDS FOR CHILI WARSHIPS TUESDAY

LONDON, Jan. 7.—Bids for two new Chilian battleships will be opened Tuesday. It is reported that the prospects are favorable for securing a modification of the proposed contract so that British shipwrights will not be given a particular advantage in the bidding over American interests. The ships will be of the 27,000-ton dreadnought class.

BURKE, ENGLISH AVIATOR, IS HURT

ALDERSHOT, Eng., Jan. 7.—Captain Burke, an army aviator, was injured to-day and the new British army aeroplane was demolished when the machine crashed to earth from a height of fifty feet. Captain Burke in the presence of a large number of military men was preparing for a series of military experiments.

CRAZED GIRL A "LADY GODIVA"

NEW YORK, Jan. 7.—A sound of scurrying feet caused Sam Eberson, elevator man in the Wilmot apartments, No. 28 East Twenty-eighth street, to look toward the stairway early today. Coming down was a nude girl with a pill box in one hand, the other being used to guide another girl in her nightdress.

After Eberson had convinced himself it wasn't a vision he recognized the Lady Godiva as Helen Willett, a pretty brunette maid employed a week ago by Mrs. Jeff Denison Thompson. The girl in her night clothes, who appeared to be afraid of the other, was Pauline Hoffman, another maid employed in the house.

Suddenly Became Demented.

The two girls slept on the seventh floor, which is the top of the house. It is supposed that Willett was suddenly stricken demented and completely oblivious to her accompany her on her prot-tion trip down the seventeen flights of stairs.

The nimble maiden started with her captive toward the first floor and then stopped inside. He ordered Miss Willett to enter the elevator and slammed and locked the door. She made a prisoner while he found policeman Donovan.

Taken to a Hospital.

They decided on sparing the girl for a time. Donovan was convinced she was not in her right mind, and sent to Bellevue Hospital for an ambulance. The girl remained quiet, with both of the men standing about her, until she heard the clang of the ambulance bell. Then she screamed and the men were unable to control her. Her cries aroused the whole house and caused great excitement.

It was necessary to get some of the tenants to help hold her until Dr. Bets ya-berg, a visiting physician, took her to the observation ward of the hospital.

CANADIAN ENVOYS CALL ON PRESIDENT

WASHINGTON, Jan. 7.—W. Field ing, Canadian Minister of Finance, and William Paterson, Minister of Customs, members of the Canadian cabinet who attended here yesterday in connection with negotiations with the State Department, called on the President at 5 o'clock at the White House. They were accompanied by Ambassador Bryce, Secretary of State Knox, Assistant Secretary of State Hale and Charles M. Pepper of the State and trade relations. The President chatted with them for half an hour.

SUGAR MEN CALLED IN INVESTIGATION

WASHINGTON, Jan. 7.—Corporation magnates who have figured conspicuously in the Congressional investigation of the Philippine lands have been asked to testify in the investigation of the House Committee on Insular Affairs. The charge is that the entire war department for the American Sugar Refining company, although ostensibly for individuals to comply with the provisions of the law.

WALKER FIGHTS GERRYMANDER

Speaker Joseph Walker to-day issued a statement condemning past gerrymanderings of political districts in Massachusetts and promising to do his best to prevent gerrymandering of the Congressional districts this year.

Speaker Walker will appoint the House members of the legislative committee which is to redistrict Massachusetts this year for congressional representation. He promises to divide the committee as evenly as possible between Democrats and Republicans and to appoint no man who does not first assure him that he will not gerrymander.

After quoting the dictionary definition of gerrymander," the Walker statement says:

"I do not believe in gerrymandering by either political party. This is the centennial of the gerrymander. The institution originated in Massachusetts. I propose to celebrate the occasion by abolishing it in Massachusetts. I, as Speaker, intend to appoint on the part of the House of Representatives a redistricting committee this year which will not gerrymander.

"The Commonwealth revises its Congressional districts once in ten years. The last revision was in 1901. That year a committee was appointed composed of fourteen members of the House, of which eleven were Republicans and three were Democrats, and five members of the Senate, of which four were Republicans and one was a Democrat. This year I shall divide the committee on the part of the House as evenly as possible, between the Republicans and Democrats. I shall appoint no man on this committee, be he Republican or Democrat, who does not assure me that he will be absolutely fair and will not gerrymander."

TRAINS CRASH IN FOG; TWO KILLED

WACO, Texas, Jan. 7.—H. D. Reynolds, Pullman conductor, and Dr. King of Dallas, were killed to-day when Missouri, Kansas & Texas flyer No. 6 ran into flyer No. 8 at Bruceville, Tweenty miles north of here. Both trains were going in the same direction. Fog covered the lights on the No. 6, the rear sleeper of which was telescoped.

VETERAN TOWN CLERK DEAD AT WAKEFIELD

WAKEFIELD, Jan. 7.—Charles F. Hartshorne, town clerk of Wakefield for forty years, and the oldest town clerk in point of service in Massachusetts, is dead at his home here after an illness of several weeks, aged 74.

Mr. Hartshorne was a native of Wakefield. During his service as clerk he had frequently recorded the birth, marriage and death of the same person.

"BUSINESS CHANCE" SENTENCE IS UPHELD

The Full Bench of the Supreme Court to-day overruled the exceptions of Charles S. Stuart, who in 1909 was found guilty of conspiracy and larceny. He must serve one year in the House of Correction. Stuart was one of the defendants in the so-called business chance cases which were tried by former District Attorney Hill.

WALKER FIGHTS ARCHDIOCESE HAS 900,000

There are 900,000 Catholics in the archdiocese of Boston. These figures are given in the official statistical report of the archdiocese, which contains a deal of interesting information besides.

From the report, which has been just issued, it is learned that there are 253 churches, twenty-nine of which are missions and the rest 228 regular parishes in the archdiocese. The diocesan priests number 536 while the priests of the religious orders number 144.

Other facts of interest, contained in the report, are that there are 163 brothers in the religious orders for men, including novices and postulants, and there are ninety-seven students preparing for the priesthood. There are three colleges and academies for boys with 1,057 students. There are eight academies for girls in the archdiocese with 1,116 students.

In the entire archdiocese eighty-five parishes have parochial schools, and there are twenty-six Catholic high schools. In the elementary schools there are 23,754 boys and in the high schools 207.

The girls in the elementary schools number 23,173, and there are 1,036 in the high schools. The total number of children in the parochial schools is 54,716. There are eight orphan asylums in the archdiocese, nine hospitals and six homes.

The AMERICAN gained over 4,000 columns of advertising last year. This nearly equalled the combined gain of the other three leading Boston newspapers having daily and Sunday editions in 1910. It is the New England record and pretty nearly a world's record. The answer is—results. "Nothing succeeds like circulation."

FOUR BIG GAMES ON NAVY FOOTBALL CARD

ANNAPOLIS, Jan. 7.—Four games of the Naval Academy football season of next Fall were announced to-day, making five in all which may be regarded as settled, as there is no doubt that the annual game with the military academy will be played as usual on the Saturday after Thanksgiving Day, which falls next year on December 2.

New York University will close the season on the local grounds, the date being November 25. The other dates are: October 7, Johns Hopkins; November 11, Western Reserve; November 18, Pennsylvania State. Princeton will play the gridiron game either October 21 or October 28.

SCHENK POISON CASE TRIAL MONDAY

WHEELING, West Virginia, Jan. 7.—Mrs. Laura Ellsworth Schenk who is charged with administering poison to her wealthy husband, John O. Schenk, will replaced on trial here next Monday. It is sure that Schenk will be put on the stand by the defence. Mrs. Schenk, who has been in jail since her arrest November 2, when she was taken from her palatial home on Wheeling Island, is confident that will soon rejoin her husband and children.

BAR 'PILGRIMS' FROM EDDY TOMB

Evidence that there is no relaxation in the vigilance with which the tomb of Mrs. Mary Baker Eddy is being guarded in Mt. Auburn Cemetery was obtained at first hand by a party of colored people who visited that burial ground to view the grave of Charles Sumner.

After paying a tribute at the last resting place of the friend of their race, the party moved on to Rose Bay avenue and halted in front of the Eddy tomb. One of them knocked on the door. There was no response but a louder knock brought out the query:

"Who's there?"

"We are pilgrims," said the spokesman of the visitors. "We have paid a visit to the grave of Charles Sumner, and have come to pay our respects to Mrs. Eddy, is she there?"

"Her body is," responded the guard from the interior.

Then the spokesman asked if the party might see her resting place, but the guard informed them that, under orders from the directors of the Christian Science Church, he could neither admit them nor open the doors to permit a view of the interior of the tomb. The "pilgrims" went away disappointed.

FILIPINOS LOYAL, SAYS PERSHING

WASHINGTON, Jan. 7.—Should an emergency arise in the Philippines, the United States would have to depend upon native troops for the defence of the islands, and the Filipino would be found a loyal soldier, according to the annual report of Brigadier-General John J. Pershing, commander of the Department of Mindanao.

SANBORN REMINDS LODGE AND CRANE OF DUTY TO SUMNER

I wonder to-day that neither of the Senators of this ancient State has thought fit to favor these anniversary meetings with his presence and words of grateful remembrance. If unable to imitate the high virtues of Sumner they should at least have paid that decent respect for the unities of mankind which the commemoration of conspicuous excellence demands to the exclusion of the petty, self-seeking and disappointed politics of a vanished year.—Frank B. Sanborn, abolitionist, on Charles Sumner meeting in Faneuil Hall.

FEAR OUTBREAK IN BILBAO, SPAIN

BILBAO, Spain, Jan. 7.—This city is under martial law to-day as a result of the demonstrations attending the arrival of Deputy Lerroux, the radical leader and revolutionary adherent. Lerroux came here yesterday to attend a mass meeting and his arrival was the signal for rioting which made it necessary to call out troops. Arrests are planted in the streets and a regiment of soldiers is encamped outside the barracks. The Republicans planned a great parade and mass meeting this afternoon, but permission was refused. They declared they would hold it anyway and bloodshed was predicted.

TO YOU WHO ARE SICK

I Make The Fairest Offer That I Know

Let me say right at the start that no money is asked or expected. I make this remarkable offer of my own free will and accord. I am finally able to do so. It is my way—the way I have chosen for doing good—the way I have thought out by which I can best send help and comfort, health and strength into this world of so much sickness and suffering.

It is for you to accept or refuse as you like.

For you to choose—whether your trouble, with all its pain, danger, fear and uncertainty, shall continue—or whether it shall be taken away. But in the choosing, remember this—health was God's most precious gift to you, and it is as much your duty to regain and keep it, as to guard and protect your life.

And disease with blood and life and power to do their work.

Stop the Heart's beat and death follows immediately—you know that. And let the Heart get weak or wrong in any way and the whole system—the whole body, from Brain to finger-tip, must suffer.

Do you say, I haven't any Heart trouble. My Heart is all right. Lots of people think and say the same thing. Why, only last week I had a pitiful, tear-stained letter from a little eleven-year-old girl out in Massachusetts, telling me how her mother fell dead the week before—with the baby in her arms! Now this woman thought her Heart was all right. She would not believe me even when I told her that symptoms of heart trouble, when all the time it's the Heart that's causing it all.

In other words you may be treating the symptoms and not the disease itself.

Following are the most common signs—the really sure symptoms of Heart Disease. Go over them carefully one by one and answer yes or no to each. That will tell the story.

Do you tire easily?
Do you have headaches?
Does your Heart flutter?
Does it ever skip beats?
Does your Heart palpitate?
Do you start in your sleep?
Are you short of your breath?
Do you feel "weak and run down?"
Do you have numb or dizzy spells?
Do you have weak, sinking spells?
Are you Nervous and Irritable?
Do your feet, legs or ankles swell?
Does your Stomach have an "all gone" feeling?
Have you pain in Heart, side or shoulder blade?

If you have no case has all—some of the very worst only a few. Therefore if you find a few or even one of them are YOUR symptoms, you should act at once for you may be in grave danger. You know Heart Disease don't wait. It comes like a thief, develops quickly and strikes without warning. ANY THIEF IS MET ON SIGHT.

If you have any of those symptoms, or you have reason to think that you have even the slightest Heart trouble or weakness, write me now. I will send you free treatment and advice.

Or, again, if you have known for some time that your Heart trouble or weakness, write me—even though your case is chronic, deep-seated, and has resisted treatment. Even though you may have been told that you cannot be cured—I urge you all the more strongly to write at once.—It is in just such stubborn "incurable" cases we have made the most remarkable cures.

The very day I hear from you, I will send you by mail, post-paid, and entirely free of charge—for your case; a letter of advice explaining your whole case fully. Also my Medical Book that is plain words and with clear pictures tells all about your trouble. Explains about your disease, how it developed, how it works and its relation to all the rest of your body. The book is valuable, do not lose sight of it. Some of my offers many people—among them several physicians, say it's the best book of its kind ever written.

A REGULAR FULL FREE TREATMENT

Remember it is all free—the Book—the Letter of advice, the full Course of Treatment. There are no "strings" to this offer. Neither is it a C. O. D. scheme or anything of the kind. I ask for no money—I send you no medicine expecting you to pay later. You bind yourself in no way. It is nothing but a genuine, generous, honest free offer of help to the sick. I am making this same offer in some of the best papers in America besides The Boston American, because it seems to me to be the best, way to quickly get advice and help—this certain, effective treatment—into the hands of every sufferer—everywhere.

To the skeptical—the doubters—the unbelievers—to those who think Heart trouble is serious, but get little or no better. In nine out of ten such cases the real trouble is with the Heart. Anyway you will get the truth here—you will then know what to do.

The free course of treatment that we send will strengthen and regulate the heart. It will tone up the Stomach, Kidneys and Liver. It will give strength and vitality to the Nerves and Nerve Centers and build up the whole system. Remember we make a specialty of treating Heart Disease and the other troubles that so often go with it. This is our life work—and all our knowledge and experience thus gained is yours gladly and freely—for the asking.

And so I say again, if you do need this help, you'd better send right now, for of course I cannot continue to make this offer indefinitely.

Throw Away Your Wigs

A REAL HAIR GROWER AT LAST. Crystolis, the Wonderful New Drug, Grows Hair in 30 Days. Read the Guarantee—$1,000 Reward If They Fail.

For many years Scientists, not only in America but also in Great Britain, France, Germany, Russia, and other countries, have been making deep study and research in search of one of the greatest problems of the scientific world—how to grow hair on the human head and check the hair and scalp troubles which are so common to-day. Success—without any marked success. Abundant hair was the rule with our forefathers. Baldness, falling hair troubles were unknown. Every group of people one sees, no matter where they may be gathered together or in their every-day lives there are either bald, partially bald, or show a tendency to become bald, much to the detriment of their personal appearance. There is proof positive that up to the present the many advertised hair remedies such as hair-drills tonics, pomades, etc., have failed in their mission.

Use Crystolis and Throw Away Your Wig in 30 Days.

Under these conditions too much credit cannot be given to the experimenting chemist of the Crystolis Laboratories, who after years of study and research has discovered the truly wonderful drug Crystolis, which, after thorough tests, has proved to be a real grower of hair, the true remedy for all and many troubles of hair, scalp, description the discovery of which has been going on for years indeed. All who have tried it are living testimonials to its value. Endless testimonials have proved that it will, providing the roots are not quite dead, cause the hair to grow in about 30 days. Gray or faded hair was often restored. In a marvellously short time. It has proved in every way in from two to fourteen days. Dandruff, falling hair and all scalp troubles in minor cases were completely cured after using Crystolis.

The amazing growth in the case of hairs continually growing, and the wonderful success in restoring hair to bald heads has impressed in many words. To those who depend upon a youthful appearance their thick head of hair Crystolis will prove to be a friend indeed. To all who are losing their hair, who suffer from Dandruff or any hair defects whatever Crystolis is now within your reach. Take advantage of its proved and remarkable hair-growing properties. Delay not.

The managers of the Crystolis Laboratories have such strong faith in Crystolis that they have decided to make the following remarkable offer. They will forfeit $1,000 to any one if there is not a new growth of hair on bald heads in 30 days. They will forfeit $1,000 to any one if Crystolis does not restore gray hair. They will forfeit $1,000 to any one if Crystolis does not remove dandruff in 14 days. They will forfeit $1,000 to any one if Crystolis does not remove dandruff in 14 days. They will forfeit $1,000 to any one if Crystolis does not remove dandruff in 14 days. They will forfeit $1,000 to any one if Crystolis does not remove dandruff in 14 days.

ARREST NEAR IN POISON CASE

CUMBERLAND, Md., Jan. 7.—Despite the non-committal verdict returned by the Coroner's Jury which investigated the deaths of Grace Elosser and her betrothed husband, Charles E. Twigg, both State Attorney David A. Robb and the police believe the case to be one of a double murder, and expect an arrest at any time.

"I did not expect to fasten the crime on any one," said Mr. Robb after the verdict, "but I believe murder was committed. I hastened the inquest merely to clear the air of a lot of false surmises. My activity and that of the police will by no means cease. We shall continue our work until this crime has been fastened on the guilty person."

Victim's Sister Ill.

The discovery of the fact that May Elosser, a sister of the dead girl and to whom Twigg was very attentive before his engagement to Grace was announced, was found suffering with symptoms of poisoning from the same drug which killed her sister and the latter's intended husband, adds a new element to the case. Both Robb and the police declare they do not believe it will be difficult to trace the guilty party.

The inquest did not adjourn until after midnight, and it was not until near its close that the startling facts regarding May Elosser were brought out.

There was a decided sensation when Dr. C. W. Ford, one of the physicians who answered the call to the Elosser house, testified he had discovered May Elosser unconscious on the floor, frothing at the mouth and apparently dying from the effects of cyanide of potassium, the poison which caused the death of her sister and Twigg.

Sisters at Odds.

While it was not brought out in the testimony it is common knowledge that prior to the transferring of his affections to Grace Elosser, Twigg had been very attentive to May, who is as pretty and as vivacious as her dead sister.

It also has been known that Grace Elosser and May had not spoken for weeks, following the announcement of the engagement of Grace and Twigg.

In her testimony at the inquest, May Elosser stated that she had just bathed, and was dressing to go out when she heard her mother scream as she discovered the bodies. She denied she had taken poison in any form, and said that suddenly everything seemed to grow dark about her and she swooned.

"Before God, I have not," she declared, dramatically, in reply to the Coroner's question if she had anything to conceal in connection with the case.

Mrs. Elosser, mother of the dead girl, who was brought from a sick bed to testify, said she saw Twigg arrive on Saturday, saw him embrace Grace and give her the wedding ring. They asked her to come into the parlor but she declined.

Asked if she saw any bottles or glasses in the room she held up her hand and said, "As God is my judge, I saw nothing."

Harlan R. Norris, an eight-year-old boy, who had been extensively quoted as to what he saw in the house shortly immediately after the bodies had been discovered, was put on the stand, but little importance is attached to his story. He reported, however, that he saw both Twigg and Grace Elosser each drinking a glass, and that Dr. Broadrup had removed these glasses. This was in direct contradiction to Dr. Broadrup's testimony that he saw no glasses.

CAB AFIRE, ENGINEER RACES WITH DEATH

More than two hundred passengers on a Fangus branch train rode from the South Station to the Faulkner Station at Malden, ignorant of the fact that the cab of the engine had caught fire from a blow out of the fire box at the Franklin street crossing and that Engineer Goodwin, at the risk of his own life, was driving the train at its highest speed to reach the Malden station so the fire might be extinguished. The fire in the driving cab was intense and Goodwin's clothing caught fire several times, but he stuck to his post and the train arrived safely at the station, where the firemen put out the fire. Engineer Goodwin was slightly burned.

STRUCK BY AUTO, IS SERIOUSLY HURT

Daniel Driscoll, fifty-four, married, living at No. 65 Albany street, was struck and knocked down by an automobile while crossing Washington near Northampton street, South End. Driscoll sustained a severe scalp wound and concussion of the brain. He was removed to the City Hospital. The automobile was owned by Theodore Parsons of No. 225 Beacon street and operated by David J. McLaughlin of No. 5 Holden street. The driver of the automobile went to the hospital with the injured man.

THOUSANDS SEE ELKINS FUNERAL

ELKINS, W. Va., Jan. 7.—Business in Elkins was at a standstill to-day in memory of the late United States Senator Stephen B. Elkins, whose body arrived here this morning for burial. Mayor J. C. Kochenderfer had issued a request that all business be suspended during the day, in consequence stores were closed and all manufactories shut down. Flags were at half mast and many buildings draped in black.

A special train of seven coaches bearing the Elkins family and the body of the dead Senator arrived at 8.35 o'clock. The remains were immediately taken to the Davis Memorial Presbyterian Church, where services were held at 10 o'clock conducted by the Rev. Dr. Frederick Baron and the Rev. Dr. Radcliff of Washington.

The services were simple and, following the eulogy delivered by the Dr. Radcliff, the remains were interred in the Davis-Elkins plot in Maplewood Cemetery.

Seven Flower Carriages.

The floral offerings filled seven carriages. They came from Washington, New York, Philadelphia, Baltimore and other cities.

There was a distinguished assemblage in the church. Governor Glasscock and many State officers came in a special train from Charleston. Among the other West Virginians present were Congressman Hubbard, Congressman Sturgis, Congressman-elect Brown and many others.

The body of the late statesman lies beside that of his father, who died more than twenty years ago. The cemetery is one of the most beautiful spots in West Virginia, situated on a level space that commands a magnificent view of the Blue Ridge Mountains.

The active pallbearers were L. D. Harper, Lee Austin, Neff Gilmore, Lee Howell, C. Fornash and C. Harper, close friends of the family.

Widow Ill in Washington.

Among the members of the family at the church were Davis Elkins, Blaine Elkins, Richard Elkins, Stephen Elkins, Jr., Mrs. Blaine Elkins, Mrs. Sarah Oliphant of Trenton, N. J., and Miss Katherine Elkins. Mrs. Elkins, widow of the Senator, is in Washington and could not attend. The following United States Senators were honorary pallbearers:

Scott, Bacon, Kean, Bailey, Foster, Carter, Smith and Root. Among the members of Congress present were Representatives Andrews, Richer, Alexander, Ainsworth, Calderhead, Lamb, White, Hubbard, Gaines, Sturgiss and Woodyard.

Although the church would only accommodate about four hundred persons, nearly three thousand were at the funeral. There was a solemn choral service, during which Mrs. J. H. Kriebel sang "Lead Kindly Light" and "Asleep in Jesus."

JAPANESE MAGICIAN IS A PUZZLE TO ALL

Otaki, a remarkable mechanical marvel, is now at Wolfe's, "My Clothier," at Hanover and Portland streets, and many people all who visit that big store and witness his feats. He is an electrical Japanese magician, and what he does would make spectators think him alive and gifted instead of being only an automaton. He came to Boston after filling an engagement at one of the big department stores in New York, and he does legerdemain stunts which make the beholder wonder if he is not animated by human intelligence after all. Dressed in a gorgeous costume, Otaki stands on a platform with a big cabinet of tarred brass and silk on his left and a smaller white and black cabinet on his other hand. In his right hand he holds a baton, in his left a fan. He makes an Oriental bow and points to the silk cabinet, and there is seen a Japanese woman fanning herself and opening and shutting her eyes in the most natural manner possible for an effigy. Another flourish by Otaki's baton and fan and this cabinet closes. He wheels around and points to the other cabinet. Within it he beholds a woman who is seated. Otaki signals again and electric lights are turned on, doors in the cabinet open and the woman has vanished. It is one of the cleverest electrical novelties ever in Boston in years. Otaki is attracting great attention and is a spectacle which every adult will want to see, not to mention the children, for whom it is an especial marvel and delight. Otaki stands inside the second entrance on Hanover street around the corner from Washington. He will perform there for some time.

WOMAN OF SIXTY IS BADLY BURNED

Mrs. Isabelle V. D. Roome, living at the corner of First and Sewall street in Melrose, was badly burned early to-day by fire which was caused by her lighting a match to see how a freshly varnished floor looked. The flames communicated to her clothing. She ran from the room screaming. A neighbor was attracted by her screams, took one of his rugs, wrapped it about the woman and extinguished the fire. Mrs. Roome is sixty years old. She was attended by Dr. Stratton and is at home.

BOSTON MEN HELD; EXTRADITION ASKED

NEW YORK, Jan. 7.—Lieut. Granville of police headquarters has asked Magistrate Herbert of the Yorkville Court to hold Joe Fisher and Frank Stein until the Massachusetts authorities could get extradition papers from Governor Ilix. On Dec. 17 a pawnshop at No. 53 Merrimac street, Boston, was robbed of $2,000 worth of jewelry and silverware. Detective Edward Finn of police headquarters arrested Fisher and Stein on Third avenue on Dec. 27. They were carrying two suit cases containing $1,500 worth of jewelry and silverware. The proprietor of the Boston pawn shop came here and identified the stuff as his.

NEW PLAN URGED FOR HIGH SCHOOLS

The State Board of Education, in a report filed with the Legislature, recommends a bill to provide that all high school teachers in Massachusetts after July 1, 1912, shall be certified by the board. Under the bill no person shall be eligible to teach in a public high school who does not hold a teacher's certificate issued by the Board of Education. The certificates will be granted to those who qualify by examination, but any person with a satisfactory record as teacher for more than six months in the high schools of the State shall be entitled to a certificate if applied for prior to July 1, 1912.

STATE HEALTH BOARD ASKS MORE MONEY

In a report submitted to the Legislature the State Board of Health asks for more money, in order to continue its investigations of several matters referred to it by the Legislature. The board asks for an additional $3,000 for its food and drug department, the sum of at least $10,000 for its investigation of infantile paralysis and $1,500 annually for general expenses in bacteriological examinations.

$700,000 BOND ISSUE BY B. & N. RAILROAD

The Boston & Northern Street Railway Company has filed a petition with the State Board of Railroad Commissioners for authority to issue first mortgage bonds of a face value of $700,000 to use in paying off floating debt, the cost of track construction and improvements.

PEARY WALK AS POLE EVIDENCE

WASHINGTON, Jan. 7.—Commander Robert E. Peary appears before the House Committee on Naval Affairs to-day to offer proofs that he reached the North Pole. One of the facts to be offered will be the record of his recent walking test as prescribed by the Navy Department. This showed he walked fifty-five miles in fifteen hours and thirty-nine minutes. Peary's friends assert this record refutes arguments of his critics who questioned his time in rounding from the North Pole.

Returning from the Pole to the point where he left Bartlett, Peary covered 150 miles in three days, an average of 50 miles a day. The journey northward from Bartlett required five days, an average of thirty miles a day.

Peary chose December 18, 19 and 20 for the government test. On the first day he walked twenty-five miles in six hours and forty-five minutes; on the second day, twenty-five miles in seven hours and twenty-six minutes, and on the third day, five miles in one hour and twenty-eight minutes. The other words, he walked fifty-five miles in fifteen hours and thirty-nine minutes.

A sub-committee discussed the question of recognition of the explorer by act of Congress, particularly with regard to a bill introduced by Representative Bates of Pennsylvania, to confer the rank of rear constructor with the rank of rear admiral.

The meeting was a lively one. Mr. Macon of Arkansas, who has been primed himself for his attack on the Peary legislation characteristically objected. He said that if Peary were to be recognized then Dr. Frederick Cook's claims to attainment of the ... also should be recognized, for the one ... corroborated the other and the story ... by the two was alike in important particulars.

MEXICAN CABINET TO HAVE SHAKE-UP

EL PASO, Tex., Jan. 7.—Advices received here to-day from Mexico City are to the effect that a shake-up is soon to be made in the Mexican Cabinet. Finance Minister Limantour, now in France, is to resign. Foreign Minister Enrique Creel will succeed him and will go to Paris soon to negotiate a foreign loan for the Mexican government. General Corio, minister of war, who is nearly eighty years old, will resign. It is reported that Vice-President Ucral, who is suffering from throat disease, will resign and go to Europe for treatment. Senor De La Barr, minister to the United States, is slated for the portfolio of foreign affairs.

Business Success Through Publicity

Bank Advertising For Deposits

The man who thinks he doesn't have to advertise is generally the banker. He feels that his business is of a nature that doesn't require it; but the most progressive bankers and banking institutions to-day now realize that they must solicit business just like other business houses.

Take the case in Boston, a few years ago it was a strange sight to see a Trust Company advertise. To-day the largest Trust Companies, as well as the largest banks, by some form of advertising are constantly soliciting those who have money and presenting their claims for deposits. And the more persistent and better the advertising, the more rapid and healthy is the growth of the bank.

A certain Trust Company a few years ago had $7,000,000 in deposits; who, by a sixteen page campaign of systematic publicity. To-day that Trust Company has increased its deposits to almost $14,000,000. Its advertising has appealed to the conservative as well as to the progressive business man; methods of solicitation have been timely and convincing and its treatment of patrons has invariably been courteous. If you were to talk to the head of that institution to-day he will tell you what he thought of publicity.

There are numbers of small national banks in Boston which have the same opportunity for the right kind of publicity. In fact, the small bank has an unlimited chance nowadays in Boston, but the small bank must wake up and realize that, like any other business that sells goods or offers services, it must reach the people with whom it is worth while to do business.

The Boston American reaches the big and small merchant, the firm and the corporation, the man and the woman who can open and maintain bank accounts worth while to a bank. Its enormous circulation, which is nearly 400,000 daily, presents the most advertising possibilities in Boston. It takes your story into hundreds of thousands of homes within the limits of Greater Boston and into thousands of homes beyond these limits. It reaches all classes —the thrifty mechanic, the enterprising merchant, the careful executive, administrative, and the big and little manufacturer.

Address the Boston American, Trade Aid Department, for further particulars along these lines.

AMY BERNARDY, WHO IS LEADING "BLACK HAND" WAR

MISS AMY BERNARDY

'BLACK HAND' IS HUNTED DOWN

ROME, Jan. 7.—Upon an armored train and over a railroad guarded by troops, forty members of the Neapolitan Camorra were transported from Naples to Viterbo to-day to stand trial, with Gennaro De Emilio Affano, for crimes which have shocked the world. Evidence gathered by detectives who worked for years among the Camorrists, paving the fellow assassins is in the hands of the government, and among the crimes charged to them is the murder of Deputy Joseph Petrosino at Palermo.

Realizing that the forty prisoners represent one of the most desperate gangs in the world, and fearful that the dread society which stands behind them would make attempts at rescue, troops were placed along the railroad track. They were carried on the trains and slabs of iron were fastened over the sides of the cars to resist bullets during to-day's journey.

The trial of Affano and his associates is expected to lure the secrets of many of the crimes of the past decade which have remained a mystery to the police. Many of these were committed in the United States. Affano is accredited with giving the death sentence while in Sing Sing prison, and also with the murder of Petrosino, the New York Italian detective, who was betrayed into the hands of "black hand" agents than the entire metropolitan police force.

One of the chief witnesses against the Camorrists is expected to be Ciro Rey, Fivizzoni. Five hundred witnesses have been summoned to the trial, which will, in all probability, be the most sensational criminal case ever heard.

An American woman was largely responsible for the appearance of the forty Black Handers. Miss Amy A. Bernardy, a former instructor in Italian at Smith College, Northampton, Mass., and later a special commissioner for King Victor Emmanuel, who has worked for years to ameliorate the conditions of Italian immigrant women and children.

Miss Bernardy exposed the methods of the Camorra society by various letters to the Italian government.

These letters were the subject of an investigation made at the king's order by the Italian Parliamentary Deputy Alessandro Penna in debate openly invited Marquis di San Giuliano, Minister of Foreign Affairs, to devise ways and means to prosecute vigorously the immigration of Italian criminals to the United States and to cooperate with the American government in the detection of the criminals. The expulsion and arrest of the criminal band followed.

AUTOMOBILE POSSE CAPTURES BANDITS

DULUTH, Minn., Jan. 7.—The two youthful desperadoes who robbed the Hotel Mackay here and killed a policeman were captured after a desperate battle early to-day in a logging camp twenty miles north of the city. A posse in automobiles trailed and cornered the pair, who were overtaken after a running fight of 20 miles. Detectives surrounded across the line on the St. Louis Bay to prevent their escape into Wisconsin.

$8 CONTINENTAL BILL IN BIBLE

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 7.—A Continental eight dollar bill was the queer find made by Claude I. Parker, collector of internal revenue, while looking through his grandfather's bible. The bill is numbered 7678. It is about half the size of a modern day bank note and on one side is printed the following: "Eight dollars. Printed by Hall and Sellers, 1776."

CARNEGIE TRUST CLOSES DOORS

the Carnegie Trust Company some months ago. He was succeeded by J. T. Horn, formerly president of the Fourth National Bank of Nashville, Tenn., and he is the present head of the institution.

Wall Street had intimations of the closing of the concern by the State Banking Department before the beginning of business to-day, and although that event was often expected, its actual occurrence came as a surprise. The news caused some hurried selling, causing material additional losses at the start, with pronounced pressure in some of the more active speculative issues. There were wide openings in railroads and steel.

Quiet Run on For a Week.

The immediate cause of the closing of the institution, it is learned, was a quiet run which had been going on for a week or more. The company had been called upon to pay out a large sum of money to depositors and finally reached the end of its ready resources. Consequently the State banking department took charge.

The Carnegie Trust Company was formed early in 1908. In 1909 it gained control of the Van Norden Trust Company and with it the Nineteenth Ward and the Twelfth Ward banks. Each of the latter two institutions had several branches.

The consolidation of these institutions formed created a powerful banking institution, with resources of almost $40,000,000 and a capital and surplus of $3,000,000 more. The number of depositors at the time of the merger was almost more than 35,000.

The merger was conceived and carried out by Dickinson and some of the more active members of the Carnegie Trust Company.

Officers of Wrecked Bank.

The present officers of the Carnegie Trust Company are: J. T. Horn, president; R. L. Smith and James R. Curran, vice-presidents; E. B. Morehead, secretary; W. L. Simpson, assistant treasurer; A. L. Hopper, assistant secretary.

Directors: David H. Bates, A. W. Barrand, W. Lanman Bispham, A. L. Colford, H. J. Condon, G. W. Conrad, C. D. Crabtree, Charles Dickinson, J. R. Curran, W. A. Decker, S. H. Kress, L. L. Lewis, Reuben Martin, F. L. A. Mesick, E. R. Peacock, J. P. Reichmann, J. Ropert, Jr., Charles M. Schwab, G. C. Smith and J. B. Stanchfield.

On November 30, 1910, total resources $4,962,000 stock and bond investments, $2,221,000; cash from banks, $1,171,000; cash, $1,035,000; aggregate deposits, $8,000,000. The company had a capital of $1,500,000 and surplus and undivided profits of $737,000, according to its last statement.

Wall Street Got Rumors.

In Wall Street the last few days rumors of some sort were floating. The news circulated, and it was reported that several firms had withdrawn their deposits on the 3d, the day before the crash made it fortnight.

The closing of the Carnegie Trust Company was offered yesterday on the curb at 50, with no bidders. The last sale was at 70 and 100. December last it sold at 115. On January 1, 1910, it was offered at 170, with bid 160, and yesterday's ten price of the stock was bid. The trust company has done a considerable commercial paper business in the South.

The company has been a depositor with the National City Bank since its organization. Officials of the latter say that the trust company does not owe them anything at present and, in fact, has stood to the good. They were not in any way embarrassed recently to precipitate the crash.

Wielded Financial Power.

The power of the Carnegie Trust Company as a financial institution is shown by the fact that Assistant Secretary of the Treasury Leslie M. Shaw was at one time president of it. In March, 1907, after he retired from the Treasury, he called on the Treasury he become head of the company. Dickinson had practically cleared the way for him.

Shaw was subsequently ousted and was succeeded by Dickinson, who resigned from the presidency to become secretary of the treasury after the election Reichmann was president of the National Starch Company at 77 Broadway. The 2nd Jan. 1907 and the next year began an extended investigation of fraudulent overissues of stock by officers of the trust company during the presidency of Dickinson and Reichmann. Parker Parker, who acted for Wellborn. The president and other officers of the trust were exonerated.

It was about two years ago that Wellborn conceived the idea of making some money by organizing the Wellborn-Northern Railroad Company. Among his first steps was to issue $500,000 in gold bonds in the name of the new concern.

New York City Depositor.

The city of New York had $650,000 on deposit in the Carnegie Trust Company. The money was drawn upon by Controller Herman Ryan, who is missing. Last week there was $700,000 to the city's credit in the institution. According to Deputy City Chamberlain Walsh, the city is fully protected by the bonds of the trust company.

Joseph G. Robin, the young bank juggler, was at one time a director in the trust company, but his recent financial operations are believed to have had nothing to do with the closing of the institution.

The Carnegie Trust Company is a margin depositary of the New York Cotton Exchange, but it is not believed that any big loss there in the business recently.

Small Crowd at Bank.

Shortly after notice of closing there were about 1,000 people around the bank. Most of the crowd seemed to be there out of curiosity, and the number later decreased.

The name of Carnegie, as applied to the institution, attracted a great deal of attention, but the adoption of this name was without Mr. Carnegie's authority or approval. It is understood he was not a stockholder and not immediately identified with it. Mr. Shaw's connection with the bank ceased after a few months.

Frederick Lewisohn resigned as director of Carnegie Trust Co., some time ago.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 7.—Beyond a slight flurry, national banks will not be affected by the closing of the Carnegie Trust Company, according to Deputy Comptroller of the Currency Kane. Being a State institution, most of the business of the Carnegie Trust Company was outside of State banks. Only a few banks probably done with State banks. Not even national banks may be affected but slightly.

CARNEGIE CONCERN CORRESPONDENT FOR DORCHESTER TRUST

The Dorchester Trust Company was the only Boston bank for which the Carnegie Trust Company acted as correspondent. Treasurer W. F. Beale, of the Dorchester company to-day made the following statement:

"It isn't anything that affects us financially, for ourselves, or our depositors because we know them all. We have been doing reciprocal business with them for quite a while. We sent them business and they sent us business. Part of the time the balance was on one side of the book, part of the time on the other. It doesn't affect us in any way."

The failure of the Carnegie company had no adverse influence on the local market, which was firm. The volume of trading, however, continued light.

A Boston trust company official says: "The closing of the Carnegie Trust Company is of no great importance to financial circles, as it has for some time been regarded as a weak sister among New York banks. It did not give a good account of itself during the panic of 1907, since which time it has not been a factor of great importance."

TAFT FAVORS HONDURAS PLAN

WASHINGTON, Jan. 7.—The report of the negotiations by the United States, J. P. Morgan & Company and Honduras, to rehabilitate that republic and to erect it into a buffer State for the peace of Central America under the protection of the United States, as told exclusively in the AMERICAN, was corroborated in administration circles to-day.

The President favors the plan. He desires tranquility in Honduras and believes the plan will solve the problem and be a protection against warring factions in adjacent States.

Stripped of all diplomatic verbiage the plan is to make Honduras, with its consent, virtually a protectorate of the United States. In order to accept these financial agreements with the New York group of bankers which are the backbone of the arrangement it must be ratified by the Congress of Honduras, which is about to take up the matter. The negotiations in progress are in charge of Juan Parceles, special financial agent, who is dealing with a group of bankers in New York, of which J. Pierpont Morgan & Co. are the leaders. Senior Chauncey M. Depew is president of the group.

It developed to-day that the diplomacy of the United States under Secretary Knox brought about the rejection of a private English proposition which had for its ultimate design the very purpose of the present American negotiations with Honduras.

The success of this Government is notable because British interests so far as the foreign debt of Honduras is concerned, were paramount. It was discovered, however, by Secretary Knox that the proposition of the English syndicate which was backed by Great Britain involved the actual hypothecation of the whole of the customs in which large amounts of American money were invested and that American interests elsewhere in Honduras were not protected at all.

U. S. CHECKMATED IN CANADIAN TARIFF

WASHINGTON, Jan. 7.—That no revolutionary changes will be made in the Canadian tariff as a result of the meeting in this city of Messrs. Fielding and Patterson with the United States officials over the question of reciprocal trade relations is practically guaranteed through a semi-official channel. The recent conferences on reciprocity held at Ottawa was a deadlock with few signs of progress at the end. It is understood that the Canadian representatives all through the negotiations have followed a policy of such obstinate caution that the secret programme of the Republican government has been at important points checkmated.

MEAT INSPECTION PLAN IS OPPOSED

WASHINGTON, Jan. 7.—Vigorous opposition to the proposed department of public health so far as it would include meat and dairy inspection is made in the annual report of Dr. A. D. Melvin, chief of the bureau of animal industry, which was given to the public to-day. "To place animal inspection in a department of public health is preposterous," says Dr. Melvin. "The area for more stringent laws regarding the sale of butter and interstate shipment of dairy products. Meat inspection during the fiscal year was conducted in 1,019 establishments, located in 241 cities, as compared with 970 establishments in 240 cities, the previous year.

FEAR FOR LIFE OF FATHER M'CARTHY

The Rev. Lawrence P. McCarth., pastor of the Church of the Most Holy Redeemer of East Boston, who was found in a half-conscious condition in his room at the parish house, No. 65 London street, East Boston, yesterday, is reported to-day to be in a serious condition. It is feared he may not recover. He was planning to celebrate the 40th anniversary of his ordination on Jan. 15 but the event has been postponed. Father McCarthy has spent the entire 40 years of his priesthood in East Boston.

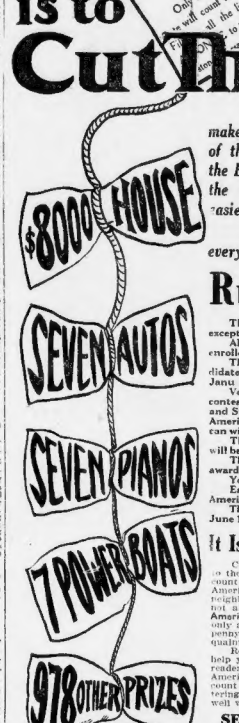
Cut This Out

In this generous offer to its readers, the AMERICAN makes the conditions the easiest ever known in a contest of this kind. You simply have to get your friends to buy the Boston AMERICAN, Daily and Sunday—and to save the vote coupons which will be printed therein; the easiest thing in the world.

There is no age limit in the contest and it is open to every man, woman and child in New England.



Rules for the Contest

This contest is open to every man, woman and child in New England, except employees of the American and their families.

All contestants must be residents of New England, and must be regularly enrolled on the enrollment ballot which appears on this page.

The first enrollment ballot, and only the first one, received for each candidate before the day the first vote appears in the American on Sunday, January 15th, will count for 1,000 votes.

Vote coupons from the Daily or Sunday American will count in this contest. One vote coupon will appear in each issue of the American (daily and Sunday) during the life of this contest. Each vote coupon in the daily American will be good for one vote. Each vote coupon in the Sunday American will be good for ten votes.

The one who receives the largest number of votes, irrespective of districts, will be awarded the capital prize.

The ones who receive the largest number of votes in each district will be awarded the prizes as scheduled below.

Your friends do not need to enroll you. You can enroll yourself!

Each vote coupon will be good for two weeks from the date printed in the American and valueless after two weeks.

The contest will begin Sunday, January 15th, 1911, and end at midnight, June 15th, 1911.

It Is Easy to Win One of These Big Prizes

Clip out the enrollment ballot on this page now, fill it out and send it to the American Contest Editor, P. O. Box 237, to-day. This enrollment will count for 1,000 votes if you send it this week. Get all your friends to buy the American, daily and Sunday, and save their votes for you. Your friends and neighbors will be glad to help you get one of the big prizes. If they are not at present readers of the American, ask each one of them to buy an American every day, and save the vote coupon for you. It will cost them only a penny a day to get one of these valuable prizes. Their penny gets them Boston's Best Newspaper. Every friend, neighbor and acquaintance ought to be willing to do that much to help you.

Remember, everyone wants the American. Your boys and girls to help you to collect the votes. They can ask their friends and parents; and readers, if you work in a factory or store, ask everybody there to buy the American and save the votes for you. Remember, the Sunday Coupon will count for 10 votes! Remind them every day. Do not lose a minute in entering this contest. Think of it! There are 1,000 prizes, and every one is well worth your effort.

NEW CLAIMANT TO EVANS RICHES

Alleging that she can trace the ancestry back to the time her grandfather, William Evans, lived in Cardiff, Wales, Mrs. Alfred Edgett of New Bedford, Main street, Wakefield Junction, is a claimant to a share of the millions left by Robert D. Evans.

"I am of the impression that my great-grandfather, Walter Evans, was a member of the same family as the Mr. Evans who is dead," she said. "Some time ago I received notice that my grandfather's estate was being probated and was asked to fill out some questions. I answered them all with the exception of three, which related to the date of his birth, his street and street number and the disease that was the cause of his death.

"Not having been in touch with the Wales branch of the family for so many years, I could not answer these questions, and I understand that the estate has never been settled.

"My father came from Cardiff, Wales. He was my grandfather's only son.

30 ANTI-LODGE VOTES FOR AMES

Asserting that he has the votes of at least thirty Republican members of the Legislature pledged to him as a candidate against Senator Henry Cabot Lodge, Congressman Butler Ames of Lowell has opened headquarters in the Parker House and is busy with his lieutenants.

Senator Arthur L. Nason of Lowell, Mr. Ames' chief lieutenant, claims forty-five votes for Ames, but the latter declares he is personally certain of but thirty.

Mr. Ames is ready to co-operate with the Democrats to defeat Lodge. He says that while he is a Republican candidate he is willing to swing his strength to any other aspirant who can defeat Lodge.

Senator Roger Sherman Hoar, Representative Charles A. Bean of Wakefield, Representative Thomas Ryan of Cambridge and Representative Theodore L. Sampson of Boston were among Democrats who called at the Ames headquarters in Boston.

Mr. Ames is not sending personal invitations to the Democrats, but they are being invited in to see him, they say, by Representative Cogswell of Lynn, ex-Representatives Holt of Methuen and O'Brien of Lowell.

SEAMEN'S UNION STAYS IN BOSTON

Boston wins out in the contest waged with New York for the "headquarters" of the Atlantic Coast Seamen's Union, the referendum vote taken among the seamen being heavily in favor of keeping their union headquarters at the head of Lewis Wharf in this city. William Henry Frazier of this city also was re-elected secretary-treasurer of the union, and will remain in charge at the local headquarters, while Fred Miller, another Boston man, was elected assistant secretary by an overwhelming majority. The election is a clean sweep for Boston. Mr. Frazier also holds the office of general secretary-treasurer of the International Seamen's Union, being newly re-elected to that position at the Detroit convention of the general union.

MONTAGUE'S BEST POEM ON SOLDIERS will be published in the City Life Section of the Sunday AMERICAN.

CHAMP CLARK CALM OVER PRESIDENCY

WASHINGTON, Jan. 7.—Representative Champ Clark of Missouri, who has already been pledged the speakership of the House in the next Congress is not unduly excited over the suggestion that he become a candidate for the presidential nomination at the next Democratic national convention. Mr. Clark, who is constantly receiving letters on this subject, is in a receptive mood. "It is very pleasant," said he in replying to one of these letters, "but I am not losing any sleep over it. I am not lying awake at night counting electoral votes."

BILL FOR DRUNKS $89,000 A YEAR

Boston pays $89,000 a year for the privilege of entertaining its nonresident drunks. These figures were secured following a statement made by Mayor Fitzgerald before the Wellesworth Club in Somerville, that 45 per cent of the drunks arrested by the Boston police were nonresidents.

The Mayor's idea was that if the nonresidents would stay at home when they got drunk it would cost the city a great deal less money and necessitate about half as many policemen.

As a matter of fact, during 1909, 47 per cent of the drunks arrested in Boston were not residents. This percentage is drawn from the report of Police Commissioner O'Meara. The report shows that 71,512 drunks were arrested by the police in one year. Of that number 27,953 lived outside the city.

Figure this out and it will be seen that the drunks averaged about 196 a day. It is seldom that an officer arrests more than one drunk, so that it took 196 police officers each day to arrest drunks. According to the non-resident percentage therefore, it took seventy-six police officers each day to care for the persons who did not live in Boston, but who got intoxicated within its limits.

Now, a police officer takes about a day with each drunk case, counting the time consumed in making the arrest and that taken up by his appearance in court for the next day. Officers actually give most of a day hanging around the court waiting for their cases to come up.

A police officer's salary is $23.01 a week, or about $3 a day. Therefore it costs the city $228 a day, or $83,220 per year to care for its non resident drunks.

These figures are conservative for they do not take into consideration the cost of court proceedings all in Suffolk county, and all paid for by Boston, which pays the entire expenses of the county under the Consolidation.

ENGINEER RECEIVES LOCOMOTIVE AS GIFT

CLEVELAND, Jan. 7.—As a remembrance on his sixty-eighth birthday anniversary and also as a token of appreciation of his long and faithful service, Alexander Larkin, who for forty-nine years has been an employe of the Erie Railroad, was made the present of the locomotive of which he is engineer, which will be his personal property for the rest of his life. Larkin, who lives here, entered the service of the Erie in 1862. The locomotive presented him is the one he drives daily in hauling the fast Pittsburg train between Cleveland and Youngstown.

MAYOR'S SLATE FOR SCHOOL BOARD

Mayor Fitzgerald's slate for the school board includes Dr. Thomas F. Leen of Ward 11, who has the indorsement of the Public School Association and the Citizens' Municipal League, and Dr. William F. Garrity of Ward 14, one of the two school board candidates in the Democratic city committee slate. He will not support Mrs. Julia E. Duff's candidacy.

NO LEGAL SYMPATHY FOR POOR MAN TWICE FOOLED BY WOMAN

Affections are changeable, they have no actual value. If there were no false pretenses in affection this would be a disappointing world. If a man lets a woman make him believe she loves him and this belief leads him to part with presents of value, he is entitled to some sympathy the first time he is fooled. The second time shouldn't ever occur. Judge Latshaw of Kansas City in his decision in man's suit for the value of presents made to girl who jilted him.

NEXT HOUSE HAS 433 MEMBERS; GAIN OF 42

WASHINGTON, Jan. 7.—There will be forty-two more Representatives in the Sixty-second Congress than there are in the Sixty-first. The reapportionment bill prepared by Representative Crumpacker, chairman of the House Committee on Census, provides that the membership of the next House will be 433. The present membership is 391. The ratio of population as fixed by the new bill is 211,800.

ARCHBISHOP AT SAILORS' CLUB

Several hundred sailors attended the Christmas tree entertainment at the Catholic Sailors' Club and were given a warm welcome by Archbishop O'Connell, who made the principal address. Each sailor present was given an envelope containing rosary beads, a medal of the Blessed Virgin and a Christmas card.

The program follows: Miss Margaret Gilbride, piano solos; Miss Theresa Doherty, soprano solos, accompanied by Miss Mary McGaffigan; Harry Goodwin, 2nd tenor solos accompanied by Frederic T. Depner; Miss Eleanor Barns, soprano solos, accompanied by Miss Margaret Gilbride; remarks by Augustin L. Rafter; address by the Archbishop, presentation of a beautifully framed picture of him to the Catholic Alumni Sodality to be hung in the clubhouse, which was accepted by John A. Hirst; and soprano solos by Miss Annetta Carey, accompanied by Miss Marie Duval.

In presenting the framed picture of Archbishop O'Connell to the club Miss Maloney stated she hoped that the sons of sailors they would meet him in a beautiful new clubhouse.

LEXINGTON, Ky., Jan. 7.—George Bussey, a wealthy farmer, was called to the door of his home and shot to death early today. A posse is in pursuit of the assassin.

MRS. EDDY BOOK FOR U. S. JACKIES

WASHINGTON, Jan. 7.—Two hundred and fifty copies of "Science and Health" written by Mrs. Eddy have been purchased by the Navy Department for libraries on war vessels. In this purchase the department has waived a long standing rule against the purchase for these libraries of any work of a denominational character.

The department for a long time shied off against the purchase of this book, even at the greatly reduced price at which it was offered by the publishers, on the ground that once the door was opened the demand from all denominations for the purchase of the sacred writings of their original books of their particular creeds would be overwhelming. The Christian Scientists, after pressing for months to induce the Navy Department to make the purchase, won.

The ship's libraries, made up of books which are selected by the department, are intended for the entertainment and instruction of enlisted men. The books will be delivered by the Boston publishers at the Navy Yard at Charlestown and will be distributed to the ships' libraries from that point.

By FREDERICK JOHNS.

"Made in Boston," might well be the mark upon "The Pipe of Desire," a grand opera in one act by Frederic S. Converse which was given its first performance by the Boston Opera Company last night.

There was a good sized audience, and Boston society was present to great force. At the conclusion of the opera there was loud and continuous applause, swearing and shouting. It was, in less degree, like the scene at the curtain call in the girl of the Golden West" on its first performance in New York.

Mr. Converse was dragged before the curtain with Mr. Caruso, the leading conductor, and was finally compelled to speak a few words.

"We all think you very much for this magnificent reception.

Of course, there would have been a demonstration, anyway, because Converse has many friends in this city who are glad to doubt whatever that the applause was sincere and unpremeditated, but it was a rattling opera.

"The Pipe of Desire" was composed in 1906 and was performed at Jordan Hall, with Wallace Goodrich at the organ, and George Dean, Stephen Townsend and Bertin Crossley cast in the principal parts.

The libretto was by George E. Barton. The story is forcible and pretty. Joian, a shepherd, wanders into a forest where a troupe of fairies are playing. He meets "The Old One," who gives him the Pipe of Desire. The youth does not believe in the virtues of the pipe until he returns from the old one, blown upon it. He desires his sweetheart straightway, will see the marvel. She is ill of a fever, but as the call of the pipe she rises from her bed and dashed instantly to his side. In this he learns that there is a supreme love which must not be interfered with.

Music Is Pleasing.

"The Pipe of Desire" was performed in New York last season at the Metropolitan. It was the first opera in English ever sung at that house.

New York has always depended largely upon foreign opinion. An opera by an American stood little chance of success no matter its merit. It was practically doomed before its first performance and the critics of the metropolis had to be argument about English diction on the operatic stage.

The Boston management was not unduly influenced by the New York verdict. It felt that a grand opera by a Bostonian should get a fair hearing in Boston, and the "Pipe of Desire" was put in rehearsal.

The question of diction does not enter very largely into the success or failure of the performance last night. Most of the cast were foreigners and spoke little or no English. Nevertheless they sang distinctly, and its was possible to catch a great deal of what was being said in song, probably as much as French or German opera, and often they had operas in both languages. Some of the artists sang more distinctly than others, those who were trying to catch the words, which is not the way to listen to an opera, heard enough to satisfy them.

What made the deepest impression was the character of the music. It is not unnaturally evident that he knew how to handle the voice and how to write good orchestra. In workmanship no European composer is more skilful, and he has a sense of humor. And his music was sweet, strong, throughout, though the early part was the weakest. There was plenty of harmony in the voice and for the instruments, the latter being well cleaned with refreshing clearing. A dainty little song for a contralto fairly captivated the audience after the rising of the curtain, the chorus was effective, and there was delightful recess for a ballet. Gifting themes were used, but they were always appropriate, they were in no sense musical labels.

Converse has never written before for he operatic stage when he produced "The Pipe of Desire." It would have been an interesting thing had he been similarly successful in his work. Verdi, Donizetti, Meyerbeer, Puccini and even Wagner had made before they achieved a win.

Weakness in the Tragedy.

The weakness of "The Pipe" is its treatment of the tragedy. In the shade ceen there is but one ugly spot. This s the Vision of the Pipe," where Jolan finds that his sweetheart shall expire, he, and then sees her rising from a bed of fever and rushing barefoot through ields and by brooks to her lover's side.

There was an opportunity for a lovely idyll, or a thrilling dramatic musical contrast. The music of this scene was inarticulate, and the spell of the first scene of Ricardo Martin made it very unpleasant.

The music allotted to the dying Naola is soft and sweet, while the agonizing efforts from the unseen chorus were beautiful. But the opera should end with the death of Naola. That is the proper logical moment for the curtain. Instead it drags on in non effective during which time there is absolutely no action.

There is so much that is good and charming in "The Pipe" that no one can fail to find pleasure from hearing it. Works of this nature are imported from Europe for the effective opera season, and the fact that such music originated in "L'Enfant Prodigue," the work of the youth of Debussy, which received but lukewarm welcome this season.

Fely Demigny sang in English with surprising clearness and expression, considering that she does not speak the language, and learned her lines by rote. The music seemed admirably suited to her voice and she sang it with much beauty.

Martin sang intelligently and acted well and it was not his fault that much of the music declared the wrong side of his voice. Jessa Dunchart as "The Old One" acted with dignity and sang acceptably. Jeska Swartz and Bernice Fisher were cast in important roles and acquitted themselves well as did several.

The chorus sounded splendidly, although it made many a false note. Destinn is regarded by many as the greatest soprano in the world. She is certainly the greatest woman artist at the Metropolitan Opera House. She created the part of Minnie in "The Girl of the Golden West" at the special request of the composer. It is the first appearance of Destinn with the Boston Opera Company.

Zenatello, the great dramatic tenor of the Boston Company sings Pinkerton, the American naval officer. Zenatello created this role in Milan and is one of the most distinguished and high priced tenors who ever sang it.

Polese, the new baritone of the Boston organization, will sing Sharpless. Polese was with Oscar Hammerstein for several years and is one of the best known baritones in the world.

The important part of Suzuki is sung by Jessie Swartz. A Boston girl whose beautiful voice has won her much appreciation, and whose acting at this role earlier in the season was wholly acceptable. Mr. Conti conducts.

BRILLIANT NIGHT AT FIRST ASSEMBLY

By ELIZABETH ELLIOTT.

All the beauty and wealth of Boston's most exclusive blue-blooded families were represented at the first of the two annual assemblies at the Hotel Somerset last night. It was a certainly gay night for the socially elect—the night of nights when only those possessing the magic of ancient lineage and lofty position are bidden to grace the occasion. Beautiful faces and jewel-white shoulders, glittering gems and shimmering satins with wonderfully enchanting sheen made a scene which has never been outrivalled by any precious assemblage.

Mrs. Bryce J. Allan, that acknowledged social leader, led the intricate steps of the cotillion, accompanied by the partner of cotillion leaders, S. Hooper Hooper, always adept and correct. Mrs. Allan, looking as always the embodiment of that perfect beauty queen Alexandra, was resplendent in a creation of white lace from which rolled a willowy train of rose pink satin. She wore her diamond ornaments and diamonds and carried an unusually large bouquet of lilies of the valley and roses.

Magnificently appointed and picturesque did in attraction with the opera production just preceding the assembly and society was divided between dinner invitations and the attraction of the debut of Mme. Converse's new English opera, "The Pipe of Desire," which had its premiere presentation last night. This gave up elaborate dinners to do honors to the first English opera, while others lingered on to the assembly hour and sparkling wines that they were arriving at the Somerset hall room barely in time for the cotillion.

Miss Sears Admired.

Forty of the assembly guests dined with Mrs. M. Preble Motley of the Algonquin Club, quite the largest and most elaborate dinner given so far this season. These dinner guests left shortly after 11, going directly to the assembly. It is evidently evident that he knew how to handle the voice and how to write good orchestra. In workmanship no European composer is more skilful, and he has a sense of humor. And his music was sweet, strong, throughout, though the early part was the weakest. There was plenty of harmony in the voice and for the instruments, the latter being well cleaned with refreshing clearing. Miss Christine Whitney was in a blue and gold creation and Miss Harriet Curtis was in black with silvered lace.

Always distinctively and artistically gowned, Mrs. Walter Dennegre looked especially well in a truly artistic robe of green embroidered chiffon with bands of silver and a Oriental sash about the bodice and sleeves. She is very tall and stately and carried her original gown with perfect poise.

Miss Hannah Cobb, one of the debutantes fortunate enough to be present, was in rose-pink chiffon with bands of Egyptian beaded fringings. Mrs. Wallace Goodrich was specially in royal blue satin with black chiffon draperies with a basket of white satin and fur.

Mrs. James J. Storrow wore white satin and silver brocade caught with black tulle. Mrs. Livingston Hall, Miss Alice Gardner was in turquoise blue brocade with silver trimmings.

Miss Susan Thayer, who attended the opera only, was in a black setting to accentuate.

Mrs. Alexander Porter, Jr., was in pink satin with effective gold and rhinestone silver.

An Original Costume.

That dainty little morsel of humanity, Mrs. Clarence H. Blount, was one of the most pretties dainty women present in her costume, while a trifle daring in combination of colors was so refreshingly different and so artistically blended as to be accorded all sorts of admiration. It was the poiret shade of lavender satin veiled with silver beaded net with a girdle and sash of turquoise blue velvet.

Miss Dorothy Jordan also had a distinctive note in her costuming in the pink and sash of white velvet bordered with black fringe on her dainty gown of pink dainty veiled with pink chiffon.

Miss Amy Lowell was in gray of jade green veiled with black chiffon with jet ornaments at the bodice. Miss Amy Lowell, accompanied by Judge Lowell, was in white lace over silvery satin with her fine diamond ornaments and the pearl necklace of her daughter, Mrs. F. Murray Forbes in white.

Miss Ellen Bullard appeared in a becoming gown of heavy white satin with Mrs. George Mumford was in black tetted net. Mrs. Rosamond Parker was in green tone with full gilet embroidery while Mrs. Dudley Pickman was in white satin veiled with pale light blue satin.

Mrs. Hiller James, 2d, who is a distinguished beauty with a style peculiarly her own, was in lavender satin veiled with lavender tulle and silver.

Miss Edith Bird, a bewitching little creature was in deeper blue and the ever popular Eleanors Sears came garbed in pink satin with feather trimmings, enclosed in her ermine coat. She is just as breezy as a breath of cool wind and was quite the centre of a circle of devoted admirers, who never tire of the most delightful girl in Boston society.

Miss Margaret Bradley was in white satin with touches of green and Miss Ayerton was daintily sweet in pink satin with marabout trimmings.

Some Debutantes.

Mrs. Robert Saltonstall was one of the real beauties of the evening in her coral satin gown, her beautifully coiffured head adorned with a priceless diamond tiara.

Miss Margaret Thomas wore ping brocade while Dorothy Draper, always youthfully girlish, wore white satin with green leaving his wife and four daughters here. Mrs. Eliza- Humphreys, who was sixty-five years old, beth Parker in white satin.

Miss Elise Ames, one of the wealthiest and prettiest girls of the year, was in white satin under tulle tucked and suffered about the shoulders.

Mr. and Mrs. Bremer of Commonwealth avenue, arrived late, Mrs. Bremer in blue satin and wearing gardenias.

Miss Mary Josephine Amory, just returned from a stay at the White House, was in white richly ornamented with crystal.

Miss May Loring in blue satin was accompanied by Miss Rosamond Burr of New York, an unusually pretty and vivacious girl, in crimson satin. Miss Mirlam Ames was in white and Miss Grace Stackpole in white satin. Mr. and Mrs. Lothrop Ames are among the latest arrivals. Mrs. Ames in vieux rose satin. Miss Ellen Farnsworth, a blonde beauty with exquisite coloring, was in blue.

NEW MOVE TO ANNEX CHELSEA

What is proving to be practically a bombshell has been thrown into the plans of the Committee of Fifty of Chelsea, for a change in the form of government of the city by Alfred L. Maggi, former city engineer of Chelsea, who says that annexation to Boston is the only salvation for Chelsea.

At a meeting of the committee, Mr. Maggi announced that a new move for annexation had been started by the circulation of petitions asking the Legislature to take action in the matter. The committee voted not to consider the project.

Citizens at the end of the meeting were given an opportunity to sign the petition for annexation, but few availed themselves of this privilege.

The committee voted that in its report to the mass meeting to be held next Monday night, it recommend that two forms of city charter be presented to the Legislature, one being the so-called Plan 3, which provides for a commission form of government similar to Haverhill's and the other, the so-called Plan 3, which provides for the old form, Mayor and Aldermen system, the latter body to consist of an Alderman from each ward and three at-large.

The reply postal cards containing the preferences of the citizens were read. Of the 4,700 sent out, 1,465 were received. Of this number 224 favored the Haverhill form of charter and 107 were in favor of consolidation government in one form or another.

BOARDS FAVOR 2 NEW SUBWAYS

Acting under an act of the Legislature the Boston Transit Commission and the Board of Railroad Commissioners recommend to the General Court a subway from Park street to the South Station, and favor the construction of a subway from the South Station to Andrew square. The Park street station, the joint bodies say, is so constructed as to make the extension of the tunnel to the South Station feasible. The estimated cost of such a tube is $2,000,000. The Andrew square subway is estimated to cost $3,500,000. An unfavorable report is given on the West End loop.

MISSING 21 YEARS, DIES ON WAY HOME

NEW CANAAN, Ct., Jan. 6.—It has become known here that a man who died suddenly Wednesday night in a local hotel was Francis Humphreys, who disappeared from his home about twenty-one years ago, leaving his wife and four daughters here Humphreys, who was sixty-five years old, returned with the intention of joining his family, who had been notified of his death since his disappearance, stopped at the hotel to rest. Soon after his arrival he was seized with an attack of heart disease and died before a member of his family arrived. A large sum of money was found in Humphrey's clothing. His widow will take charge of the body.

$2,000,000 GONE FROM ROBIN BOX

NEW YORK, Jan. 7.—The sensational charge was made today that $2,000,000 worth of securities have disappeared from the strong box of Joseph G. Robin, the sky rocket financier, while he kept in the box of his sister, Dr. Louise Robinovitch.

It is alleged, that the securities disappeared between the dates that a director of the Northern Bank examined them, and the date when the same director on an order from Robin went to the box and took securities with which to protect the bank. Although this director had Robin's authority to remove the securities, Dr. Robinovitch now charges the director with stealing them. No trace of the other $2,000,000 worth of securities that disappeared between the two visits of the director, however, can be found.

Robin Believed Sane.

It was learned today that all the alienists for the prosecution who have examined Robin are of the opinion that he is sane. They include Dr. William A. McLane, superintendent of the Manhattan State Hospital, who examined Robin in the home of his sister, and Drs. Smith Ely Jelliffe and Allan McLane and Hamilton, who put the banker through exhaustive tests in the office of District Attorney Whitman. It was also learned that Drs. Jelliffe and Hamilton are of the opinion that Herman Rabinovitch is the father of the banker. The alienists reached this conclusion after a scientific measurement and comparison of the heads of Robin and the aged man.

Measurements were made of the jaw bones of both men, the width between the eyes and the general contour of their heads. The result left no doubt in the minds of the doctors that Mr. Rabinovitch's claim of parentage to Robin was true.

Letters for Proof.

More than 500 letters, written by Robin and his sister to Mr. and Mrs. Rabinovitch, in which the aged couple were addressed as "my dear parents" and "my faithful mother" were in the hands of the grand jury today. Mr. and Mrs. Rabinovitch will identify the letters, and also tell how they were renounced by their children. Detectives from the district attorney's office are guarding the couple day and night in their home at No. 361 Bushwick avenue, Williamsburg.

In one of the letters Robin begged his parents to send him money and ended the epistle by declaring that if $15 was not sent to him at once he would have nothing more to do with them.

These letters and the testimony of the aged couple are to be used in securing an indictment against Dr. Robinovitch for perjury. She swore that she was Robin's sole heir. The letters, in Russian and Yiddish, were written years ago by Robin and his sister when they had no reluctance in admitting their parentage.

GIRL ARRESTED FOR ROBBING LAUNDRYMAN

Nineteen-year-old Marian Edson of No. 88 West Newton street was arraigned in the Brighton court today on a charge of stealing $150 from Yee Gett, a laundryman of No. 489 Cambridge street, Brighton. The girl was arrested today at her home. She was held in $500 for a hearing Monday.

New Building Leased by W. S. Butler & Co.

LA FOLLETTE'S NEW AMBITION

MADISON, Wis., Jan. 7.—Senator La-Follette, his most intimate friends declare, will be a candidate for the nomination for president of the Republican National Committee in 1912. A campaign in his behalf has already been organized and will be pushed within a few weeks.

You see the AMERICAN everywhere—in cars and boats, the home and the club.

NEW BUILDING FOR BUTLER'S

There has been such a heavy increase in the business of the firm of W. S. Butler & Co. that it has been found necessary to secure additional property for stock carrying and manufacturing purposes. The company has just leased the entire building of the Perry Real Estate Trust, No. 8 Bosworth street.

This building is six stories and has a floor space of 70,000 square feet. This will permit the carrying of an enormous amount of stock and will also give manufacturing space. The company intends to devote its large building on Tremont street to selling space. The fourth and fifth floors are already being remodelled. By enlarging the building a number of new departments carrying new lines of stock will be given room.

OCEAN MAIL BILL BOOM TO BOSTON

Winthrop F. Marvin of Boston is in Washington urging the passage of the pending ocean mail bill for the encouragement of American shipping. He believes the bill if enacted will greatly benefit Boston. He says:

"Boston now has no direct shipping facilities outward to South America. Years ago Boston did have direct communication and a considerable trade with South America, but that was when it had shipping of its own.

"Under the terms of this proposed bill, a 16-knot line of American-built steamships would bring Rio Janeiro within fifteen days and Buenos Ayres within eighteen days of Boston. New England is consuming increased quantities of South America coffee, rubber, hides and wool. A fast direct service between Boston and South America would be of immediate advantage to Boston merchants and New England manufacturers. There is a large natural market in South America for cotton goods, boots and shoes, hats, machinery and woodenware, extensively produced in New England factories.

"The bill as drawn would give Boston merchants as good a chance as those of New York to bid for the mail contracts."

EXPRESS REGRET AT DEATH OF AVIATORS

NEW YORK, Jan. 7.—Resolutions of regret at the recent death of John B. Moisant and Arch Hoxsey were adopted by the Aero Club of America at its regular meeting today.

"Astonishing progress in aeronautic achievements of the last two years and the even greater advancement that is bound to come," said President Alan A. Ryan. "These at this time a certain burden of responsibility upon the Aero Club of America, and if we are to do our part in full in aiding this country to reach and maintain the position it should have in this great enterprise, there is an immediate necessity for energetic and concerted work, from now on."

ENTOMBED MINERS RESCUED UNHARMED

WALLACE, Idaho, Jan. 7.—Hungry and thirsty, but otherwise unharmed, nine miners, after being entombed for twenty hours in the Morning Camp mine, near Pillan, have been released by rescuers who cleared away 100 feet of rock to make a passage through the tunnel. The nine men were at work when, without warning, the ground above caved in and filled the tunnel for a distance of thirty feet. They were 300 feet from the scene of the cave-in.

PROHIBITIONISTS PLAN CAMPAIGN

CHICAGO, Jan. 7.—Members of the Prohibition party are already considering the campaign of 1912. To that end a meeting of the national committee of the party has been called for Tuesday, January 24, at the Hotel Lasalle. Leaders from every section of the country have been called to Chicago for the meeting, which will be presided over by Charles F. Jones of the national committee. The Prohibitionists of Chicago will tender the visiting members a banquet on the night of January 24.

WILSON TELLS OF HIS WOOING

Miss Jane Delehanty of East Boston, often referred to as the prettiest girl on all Noddle Island, confirmed today the news of her engagement to Charles H. Wilson, the foreman and while manager of Alfred Gwynne Vanderbilt's string of show horses and the man who was sued for $50,000 by Florence Schenck, the Virginia belle, on the ground that he owed her from home under a promise of marriage.

While admitting, with becoming blushes, that she is to marry Mr. Wilson Miss Delehanty refuses to give any details of their wedding plans. She says that they will be married within a fortnight and will go abroad for a honeymoon. But she declares that the wedding day is not definitely fixed. Nor will she say on what boat they will sail for their bridal passage.

At the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas F. Delehanty, No. 103 Meridian street, East Boston, Miss Delehanty said today:

"Mr. Wilson All Right."

"Yes, I am going to marry Mr. Wilson all right. But I don't know just how soon. It will be some time within two weeks, but we haven't completed arrangements yet.

"It's foolish to say that my parents are opposed to him. They did object a little at first. But there was no real opposition.

"One of the morning papers said that I met Mr. Wilson at the Brockton Horse Show. That isn't true. I met Mr. Wilson at the New York Horse Show last Fall. I was attending the horse show with my mother. Mr. Wilson and I became very well acquainted in New York. Since then he has been here to see me many, many times. That's about all there is to tell about it.

"As I say, I don't know just when we will be married. But we are planning to sail for Europe about two weeks from now, if not somewhere. But I am not going to tell what boat we shall sail on.

"We are getting ready for the wedding as quickly as we can, but the date is not definitely fixed."

Wilson Talks of Schenck Case.

Miss Jane Delehanty is nineteen years old. She is a brunette of charming type, with black hair, dark eyes with complexion and slender but well-rounded figure. She is a graduate of the public schools. With her sister, Miss Helen Delehanty, she is a favorite in the social circles of her school and home life.

Her father, Thomas F. Delehanty, is a bookkeeper at City Hall. He is a native of East Boston. The Delehanty home is at No. 463 Meridian street.

Dispatches from Newport to-day quote Charles H. Wilson as verifying the report of the engagement and coming marriage. Wilson said the marriage would take place some time this month, followed by a trip abroad.

Asked at Newport about his attachment for Miss Schenck, Mr. Wilson declared that there had been no marriage in that case. Miss Schenck afterward went on the stage and it was supposed now to be in need of comedy, in London or Paris. Because of his affair with Miss Schenck and the notoriety it brought him, Mr. Wilson had trouble and some difficulty in finding a Newport clergyman to marry him.

"It was a case of love at first sight, don't you know," said Mr. Wilson. "I expect we will spend at least six months coaching in England as well as attending the horse shows. Miss Delehanty is quite as fond of a horse as I am. I shall put Pelgrate in the coaching trips from London to Brighton.

"It was a very romantic courtship. I have only known my fiancee three months, and it did not require more than half that time to convince both of us that life would not be worth the while unless we were to live it together.

Denies Schenck Marriage.

"We shall return to America at the close of the London season and will probably locate at Newport.

"It was at the horse show that I first met Miss Delehanty and after the introduction Cupid gently took the bit in his teeth and would not be guided. We are both very happy and I consider myself the most fortunate of men."

Wilson secured a position with Alfred Gwynne Vanderbilt in 1903. While at Newport Miss Schenck announced that she was Wilson's wife and went to England when he went there with the Vanderbilt string. The wife denied that they had been married.

Miss Schenck brought suit against Wilson for $100,000, charging that he lured her from home under promise of marriage. His employer, A. G. Vanderbilt, was credited with conducting negotiations to hush up the matter immediately following Miss Schenck's affair. Mrs. Elizabeth Wilson of Orange, N. J., brought a suit for divorce against Wilson.

THE MOST PICTURESQUE WEDDING will be described in detail in the Sunday AMERICAN.

REPORT OF LICENSE TRANSFERS DENIED

The Licensing Board gave out this statement to-day: "There is absolutely no truth in the report that the board intends to transfer licenses into the suburban district of Boston. Within a few days there have been seventy-six applications for liquor licenses in the Dorchester district, but the board has only granted three, and they are of the fourth class.

Special Notice.

A SACRED HERITAGE

Health is a heritage so sacred and precious that no one can afford to experiment with it by making use of some high-sounding "tonic bottles" of medicine of unknown composition. When an invalid, weak, nervous woman takes Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription she knows exactly what she is using. By reading the list of its ingredients, as printed in a little book and attested under sacred oath as being full and correct (see 24 page of cover of this little book) she will see that it contains no alcohol, and no narcotics or other harmful or habit-forming drugs. Only pure glycerine extracts of native American medicinal roots, which have received the highest praise from the most eminent medical men of this country as remedies for woman's ailments, enter into its composition.

Constipation causes and aggravates many serious disorders. It is thoroughly cured by Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets. One is laxative; two or three are a mild cathartic.

SHOPS BURN IN SOUTH END FIRE

Fire that started in the centre of the triangular block at Appleton and Tremont streets, early to-day did $1,000 damage before it was extinguished.

The one-story wooden block is occupied by ten small establishments. P. Bruno, barber shop, 40 Appleton; tailor shop, 42 Appleton Pharmacy, a gents furnishing establishment, a cobbler's shop, a florist, A. Cohen's tailor shop, A. W. Lennan, locksmith, Daniel F. Walsh, plumber, and a Chinese laundry. The gent's furnishing shop and A. Cohen's tailor shop suffered the heaviest losses, but all were slightly damaged.

The fire was discovered by two policemen on duty. They saw smoke coming from the furnishing shop and notified Protective No. 2 on Appleton street. When the apparatus arrived smoke was pouring from all the shops. The fire was extinguished without difficulty.

The blaze is supposed to have started by spontaneous combustion near the centre of the block. The damage is estimated at $1,000.

JACK LONDON AT PARTY FOR A DOG

SAN FRANCISCO, Jan. 7. The elite of Carmel-by-the-Sea viewed Jack London seated at the same table with Finny Rollins, a dimunitive dog.

London who studied the seven seas is a cynical, who has written tomes about the primordial passions of strong men and women, who struck a reverberating chord in the heartstrings of a million people when he told of an Alaskan canine struggling against an instinct to "revert to type"—shared lady honors and lemonade with the dainty, ladylike Finny Rollins, who wore a frilled hat and frocks.

The occasion was the second birthday of Finny Rollins, owned by Mrs. Caroline White Hollis, who presided. The affair was held in the arts and crafts Hall which was elaborately decorated in holly and berries. A dog cake was laid for seventeen and at the head of the table, perched on a high chair, sat Finny Rollins. There was an enormous birthday cake, elaborately frosted and bearing the date of birth of Finny Rollins in icing.

PSYCHIC INFLUENCE CAUSES GIRL'S DEATH

NEW YORK, Jan. 7. The psychic influence of mental conversation led to the death of Sophie Schmutz of Rockaway Beach, L. I., early to-day. Several days ago the girl discussed death by drowning with a friend. Ever since that time her mind dwelt upon the subject. She often expressed the fear that she would die by drowning. Early to-day, in her sleep, she walked into the bay at Rockaway Beach, and her body was found floating in the water at dawn.

How to Get Rid of Catarrh

A Simple, Safe, Reliable Way, and It Costs Nothing to Try.

Those who suffer from catarrh know its miseries. They are tired of their constant suffering. You can get rid of it by a simple, safe, reliable, inexpensive home treatment, discovered by Dr. Blosser, who for over thirty-six years has been treating catarrh successfully.

His treatment is unlike any other. It is not a spray, douche, salve, cream or inhaler, but is a more direct and thorough treatment than any of these. It cleans out the head, nose, throat and lungs so that you can again breathe freely and sleep without that choked-up feeling that all catarrh sufferers have. It heals the diseased mucous membranes and arrests the foul discharges. It kills the germs that constantly shooting your nose and spitting all the time. It does not ruin the digestive system and ruin the stomach, as internal medicines do.

If you want to test this treatment without cost, send your address to Dr. J. W. Blosser, 210 Walton street, Atlanta, Ga., and he will send you by return mail enough of the medicine to satisfy you that it is all he claims for it as a remedy for catarrh, catarrhal headaches, catarrhal deafness, asthma, bronchitis, colds and all catarrhal conditions. He will also send you free his illustrated booklet. Write him immediately.

JACK LEONARD GETS THE DECISION OVER SMITH IN FAST GO

Isn't It Always the Way? — By Tad

GREAT DAY FOR BOSTON FIVES

Many college, high school, Y. M. C. A. and outside basketball games are on the schedule for today.

Melrose high meets the Boston University Law School team at Melrose, and the school boys are out for the State championship in spite of their defeats on their trip to the Western part of the State last week.

They have one of the fastest teams that has represented the school for several seasons and will give the college players the hardest kind of a game.

The other high school games scheduled are between out-of-town high schools, games being played at Middleboro, Bridgewater, Fitchburg, Reading and Hingham.

Many good games are scheduled to be played to-night. Newton and Chelsea both fighting for position in the Middlesex League standing, and a great game is anticipated.

BASKETBALL RESULTS.

At Manchester—Doorstone High, 10; East Boston High, 37.
At Salem—Salem Normal, 33; Tufts College, 31.
At Rowe—Rowe High School, 6; Rowe, 14.

CONNIE MACK BARS SPITBALL

Lefty Russell, the southpaw who met Connie Mack somewhere in the neighborhood of $12,000, will not pitch the spitball this coming season.

This fact became known stands against further story. And the hearts of the American League batters should gladden as a result.

Lefty Russell possessed all they say he has of the spitball and hurled the spitball in addition, have also stood be as rare a thing on a baseball field. And the members of the St. Louis Brown aggregation will tell you so.

This announcement that Russell would be compelled to speed his salva sphere the plate will probably come as a surprise to baseball fans in the American League.

For it was presumed that "Lefty's" strong suit would be his ability to send the aggravating ball to the batter from the standpoint of a southpaw. Which would be exceptive to say the least. But it seems that Connie Mack has something on the ball besides on the batters.

It has slightly doubted that Connie Mack knows considerable about a ball player. For he has proved it by the fact that he could further reserve judgment indicate that a team would have a terrible time beating his job and then allow him to pitch his best off trying to make good. But in this instance Mack actually became enthusiastic.

"I have had many southpaws under my command," said Connie Mack.

"Many, too, and he had the great Rube Waddell when he was in his prime. But I never before saw a southpaw when he could come to consider self handled. Russell is a pitcher of the fair sample of a left hander in action.

"But that fellow Russell is the greatest left hander I ever saw," remarked Connie, with a far away look in his eyes. "And this I do not intend to allow him to use against me. I understand. And since I believe that the spitball is the most effective ball that can be used in pitching, I expect to outwit this young fellow and not allow him to use only his speed and his curves."

BOSTON HORSE MEN AT MONTREAL ICE RACES

Ed Morse of this city will be the major domo or manager of the auction pools at the coming ice races at Delormier Park, Montreal, which are called to begin January 19. A good-sized company of Boston horsemen are going down for the sport, and there promises to be some remarkably close racing on the frozen course there.

It looks as if the races would be well worth the while of all horsemen, who have the opportunity to attend, and that the betting, while not showing any very large tickets, will be much volume as to keep busy those desiring to lounge a bit upon their choice of winners among the trotters and pacers.

TWO MORE RED SOX SIGN UP CONTRACTS

Billy Purtell, third baseman, and Frank Smith, pitcher, landed themselves for 1911 at the Red Sox headquarters to-day.

Purtell sent in from Columbus, O., and Smith came from Pittsburg. Both announced their intention of joining the Red Sox training trip, which begins February 18, and they will be picked up en route.

This makes fourteen Red Sox now under contract for the year and gives them a complete infield and outfield already signed up under this year's terms, together with six pitchers and a catcher.

BROWN BEATS YOUNG PIERCE IN FAST BOUT

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 7.—In the feature bout at the Nonpareil boxing benefit to aid the firemen's fund Preston Brown of Harrowgate outpointed Young Pierce, the Germantown colored featherweight, in six rounds. Brown used a left jab with telling effect and also counted several times with a hard right. Pierce was warned several times for butting.

RARIDEN SIGNS UP WITH THE RUSTLERS

The signed contract of Billy Rariden, the catcher, has been received by Manager Tenney of the Rustlers. Rariden is at Bedford, Ind., where he has had some fine hunting and fishing. Rariden did some good work for the Doves last season, and Tenny is banking on him for 1911.

MERRINGO DEFEATS CHESTER WOLCOTT

At the Hyde Park A. C. Tony Merringo of the North End defeated Chester Wolcott of Malden in eight rounds; Mike Wilson lost to Young Clancy of South Boston in the fourth and Young Yanger of East Boston defeated Johnny of the West End in four rounds. In the semi-final bout Battling Dan Hurley lost the decision to Tony Lorenzo after a six-round bout.

SPORTS of all SORTS

FIRST BASE IS NOT THE ONLY PORTE

Fred Tenney holds in lines of sport He's clever with the quick retort, they say. A story frequently they quote, how once he got an umpire's goat, and forged some harsh words down his throat, this way. They do not tell this umpire's name, a real ugly customer is the one, but they record it put to shame a few. The two were rails where in the park played, but only decision that was mine Fred Tenney thought was just a shade too fine. He turned an award with a leer, "I know! That's why we're batting .000 and you're batting .300. trust that's clear. Play ball! "One hundred dollars," retorted Umpire Dell, "for have faults it might be said, but mine are never hard." * * *

THE CRITICISM OF CHARLEY WHITE

as referee of the Langford-Jeanette bout is the one best joke among fight followers. Every Boston referee who has handled a bout in Boston the past few months has been roasted by some fellow because he didn't game. When White was picked as "third man in the ring" with Langford and Jeanette he got the same dose. And, what do you think? The referee got it because one of the same Boston men, who had been roasted before, wasn't picked this time. You'll have to look deep for the answer. White's decision was one of the oddest men in the business. He was the arbitrator of the Langford-Jeanette argument last night, and he got the right decision against Jeanette—whose manager, by the way, is the same one who was standing Langford's margin over the tall Britisher in the betting. Maybe that's why Langford and Jeanette are satisfied with White's decision. It's enough. * * *

IS THE BASEBALL SCOUT, WHO DElivers the goods, not entitled to an equal compensation with the manager? Such was the topic of conversation among a crowd of old-time ball fans at Tom McCarthy's. "I believe," said one veteran, that Arthur Irwin of Boston was entitled to as much credit for the championship honors won by the New York Highlanders, is entitled to a larger salary than any man who has ever piloted a club. And in support of his argument, the grizzled ball tosser declared that Irwin had secured for the Highlanders, Cree, Daniels, Roach, Quinn, Warhop, Fisher, Gardner, Caldwell and others, all of whom were signed by Arthur while watching their playing among the bush leagues. * * *

THERE CERTAINLY IS NO MORE

ball player of Greater Boston, who enjoys a greater popularity than John Collins, of Newton Upper Falls. An American reporter, who landed at the little village in the suburbs of the tireless City, was attended by a small guard of youngsters all the way from the depot to John Collins' home, a distance of over a mile, that the scribe might run no danger of missing the right house. The first citizen of the place, Collins should have a splendid year with the White Sox. * * *

JAMES MALEER, MANAGER OF THE

Senators, thinks that if he had Cobb, Speaker and "Big Ed" Walsh on his string Washington would win the American League pennant. "The All-Star team star that test the Athletics, under my management, last fall was a good one, Senators and three stars and we made the world's champions look like minor leaguers," said Maleer "and will have a fine time getting three stars of that magnitude. * * *

KEENE FITZPATRICK, THE TRAINER

of Princeton, is receiving a royal greeting at his old home in Natick, where for years he has enjoyed a great popularity. While Keene is not saying much, it is known that he is immensely pleased at the success of his plan in bringing Michigan to her old-time form. Fitzpatrick will gather upon the football gridiron next season. * * *

MATTY BALDWIN, AS TRIM AS EVER, and dressed like a fashion plate, passed through the South Station on the way to the Norfolk training quarters. "Did you know," said the little fellow, "I really believe my arm is now stronger than before it was broken. The bones have knit splendidly, and I am able to do my entire training work with no attending discomfort. * * *

THAT GIFT OF THE WORLD'S WRESTling title Frank Gotch was supposed to have turned over to Mahmout, the Turk, was only an Indian trimming, and the real visions of adding a few more hundred dollars to his purse and maybe waiting for another raise in the purse.

STAR BOWLERS IN BIG MATCH

By ED. COGSWELL.

Bill Galway and John Christopher have declared themselves in the matter of the two-man bowling match that has been disturbing the local bugs for many a month. They will meet Ned Poehler and whoever he may select for partner, at the AMERICAN Sporting Department next Monday afternoon between 5 and 6 o'clock to post whatever forfeit is considered necessary for a match, the total amount to go put as far to the boy as Poehler will put up. Galway and Christopher claim that they have been open to make a two-man match for the past couple of years, and that they have not dodged the issue, as has been reported in bowling circles.

It is also their wish that if Poehler and partner desire to contest their claim to the two-man championship of Greater Boston or New England, that the affair be arranged Monday afternoon, for the sake of friendly spirit.

Talking of challenges, there is a reply to the one offered by the Everett Lodge of Elks for the championship, in which Melford accepts and will bowl the first game at Everett and the return match at the Hayward Alleys. In case of a tie McElroy is willing to toss for choice for the third match.

Who puts up to Everett is some across.

Where you at the Boylston Alleys to see the home team pass one to the leaders of the Greater Boston City League—Chelsea Grange? It did seem the pals of the new boy the Boylstons were bent on rehearing Jimmy Horne's bunch of pin cripers. None had an idea, however, that it would be four straight last night.

It was due to Fred Hitchins and Bill Hurst, the pride of the second string team of Boylston, won by ten pins, in the last string all the way through and a mind in leading the trick. The best bowling of the night was by Fitzgerald of Chelsea, who rolled for 339. Three of the Boylstons went over 300, while two from Chelsea accomplished the feat. It was a mighty good match.

TIM HURST MAY BE LEFT OUT IN COLD

NEW YORK, Jan. 7.—It is reported that Tim Hurst will not be reappointed to the Eastern League's umpire staff by President Barrow. It is said that several of the club owners have found fault with Hurst, because of lax methods that have demanded fines.

Hurst was removed from the American League staff by President Johnson because of a fine altercation with Eddie Collins in Philadelphia.

PITCHER VIC WILLIS ON THE CUBS' STAFF

CHICAGO, Ill., Jan. 7.—Pitcher Vic Willis of the St. Louis Cardinals is now a member of the Chicago Cubs' staff. He was obtained by President Murphy through the waiver route. The sum of $1,500 was paid Boston, and a like amount is on its way to President Robinson.

MARTIN MAY MEET QUILL AT FALL RIVER

The New Bedford Club is trying to secure Tommy Martin to box Frank Mantell at their next show. The Colonial Club of Fall River has also made him an offer to meet Tommy Quill.

POLICE CALL HALT ON BOUTS AT ROCHESTER

ROCHESTER, N. Y., Jan. 7.—The newly formed Armory Athletic Association, which has conducted several good bouts in this city, has been notified by the police authorities that further boxing matches will not be permitted. RED SOX MASCOT GETS "PAL" JOB

Jerry McCarthy, mascot of the Red Sox, has got a big pull with the magnates who control the Boston Rustlers. Upon his recommendation, his chum, Mickael Clarke, has been appointed official mascot of the Boston Nationals.

Here is the letter that did the trick and won for "Mikey" the job:

67 Cabot St., Roxbury, Mass. Jan. 6, 1911.

Mr. Tenney,

Dear Sir:—I am not writing for the mascot job for myself, but for Michael Clarke. I think if you give him another chance he will bring better than last year. Mikey plays with me, and is a real good fellow. There is a lot of them for that job, but if you give Mikey another chance I think you will be satisfied. Thank you.

Your truly,

(Signed) JERRY MCCARTHY.

Mascot of the Red Sox.

Boston, Mass., Jan. 6, 1911.

And here is the letter in which Manager Tenney sent Jerry that makes Jerry and Mikey like the Katzenjammer kids:

My Dear Boy:—I am willing this to assure you it is my intention to name Michael Clarke official mascot for our club. I want to thank you for your nice letter in behalf of your friend. That is what I like and admire—do stick up for one's friends and help all you can.

Cordially, TRED TENNEY.

SQUAD OF 40 PLAYERS SIGNED BY BROCKTON

BROCKTON, Jan. 7.—Manager Steve Flanagan of the Brockton Baseball team expects to have nearly forty men report next Spring. He is sending out contracts to a score of young players, from which he expects to secure some good "Sunday" to go with the veterans left over from last Summer.

Fred Bolden of Trainor, Pa., a third baseman, is the latest to accept terms. Contracts have also been signed by Edward J. Kane of Rockland, as outfielder; Charles Knight of Quincy, a pitcher, and Frank Burke of Waltham, a second baseman. Willard L. Fuller, of Worcester, a first baseman, is being sought, as is Charles Welch of Ashland, an outfielder.

"PING" BODIE SIGNS UP WITH WHITE SOX

SAN FRANCISCO, Jan. 7.—"Ping" Bodie, the heavy hitting outfielder of the San Francisco club of the Pacific Coast League, has signed a contract with the Chicago Americans for 1911 and will start East to accompany the club on its training trip about February 15.

Bodie won a reputation last season by his ability to knock out home runs on the local grounds.

GRIMSHAW LOSES HIS APPEAL FOR BACK PAY

CINCINNATI, O., Jan. 7.—The National Baseball Commission has affirmed the decision of the National Board of the National Association rejecting the claim of E. F. Grimshaw of the Toronto club for salary alleged to be due from August 23 to the close of the Eastern League season of 1907. Grimshaw will start East to accompany the club on its training trip about February 15.

HARVARD MEETS M'GILL TONIGHT

HARVARD. | M'GILL.

By E. V. D. PARKE.

Harvard's new hockey team will make its first appearance on the Arena ice to-night in a game with the fast M'Gill seven from Montreal. The Canadians are coming to Boston with an eye to victory and are pretty confident of getting away with the contest, as they have not met defeat in any game played on foreign ice. Many persons, among them Jack Laviolette, the Canadian star, have been picking up for M'Gill for the last week, so as to give the team the benefit of the same experience that Harvard had in the Montreal game last year, when the Crimson players were swept off their feet by the fast attack and exhibition of team work so often witnessed in the Ice sport. Harvard will get its best team on the ice to-night.

Both teams are to be lined for the reason that in 1907 M'Gill and Harvard played a tie game, each team finishing with 8 to 8. It is going to be a hard matter for the Crimson to defeat the Canadians, for they have a team that is well balanced and will be hard to beat. Should the Crimson, however, be victorious to-night, that will not be the last game, for it is said that the Canadians will return to Boston on Tuesday night to meet Tufts at the Arena. A short series of hockey games, which will take place in January, is also expected.

The high school games scheduled for to-night are: Medford and Watertown at Medford, Somerville and the Mystic seven at Somerville, Brookline and Brighton at Brookline, Natick and Framingham at Natick, Newton and Milton at Milton, and Malden and Cambridge Latin at Cambridge.

SCHOOL ICE BATTLES ON SCHEDULE TO-DAY

COLLEGE.

Harvard vs. M'Gill University, at Boston Arena.
Princeton vs. Columbia University, at New York.
Amherst vs. Springfield Y. M. C. A., at Amherst.
Trinity vs. Amherst Agricultural College, at Hartford, Conn.

SCHOOL.

Medford High vs. Winthrop High, at Medford.
Somerville High vs. Mystic Seven, at Medford.
Harvard 2d vs. Rindge M. T. S., at the Stadium.
Milton High vs. Milton High, at Milton.
Cambridge Latin vs. Malden High, at Cambridge.

SPEEDY SEVENS BATTLE ON ICE

The hockey season is now at its height and the games that are scheduled for to-day are among those of the most important of the year. The old saying, "Five of the first two days, has been shown in the short years of the game, will interest growing stronger every day.

The great game of the week is, of course, the one to be between the Crimson team and M'Gill University at the Arena to-night. Princeton at Utica and Princeton at New York and the Mass. Specials vs. the Crescents at Hingham are also to be played. Trinity at Hartford and Amherst at Springfield are the other college games in this section. A short series of hockey games, which will take place in January, is also expected.

The high school games scheduled for to-night are: Medford and Watertown at Medford, Somerville and the Mystic seven at Somerville, Brookline and Brighton at Brookline, Natick and Framingham at Natick, Newton and Milton at Milton, and Malden and Cambridge Latin at Cambridge.

RICH STAKES AT BROOKLINE MEET

The consensus of sporting among the patrons of the handicap meet was followed with much interest the annual meeting of the National Steeplechase and Hunt Association, which was attended by A. Henry Higginson of Boston, chairman of the board of governors, and the Country Club Hyde Park Horse, because that the steeplechase was to have taken place that day, but on account of the inclement weather it was postponed to the following Saturday at Brookline. The meeting was called to order by Mr. Higginson at 2 o'clock, and the following officers were elected for the ensuing year: President, Alexander Cochran; vice-presidents, Thomas Hitchcock, Jr., and Foxhall P. Keene; secretary and treasurer, Grenville Kane; executive committee, Roger Wolcott, Robert Winthrop, Jr., and Arthur Scott Burden.

The meeting was then adjourned to the Brookline Country Club, where the annual dinner was served.

READVILLE HEAD OFF FOR BUFFALO TODAY

Walter H. Milton who will represent the Readville track at the meeting of the Grand Circuit, to be held in Buffalo on Monday and Tuesday next, left for that city last night. Mr. Milton will be accompanied by Secretary Edward F. Geers, who will transact considerable business for the Readville track while in Buffalo.

BASEBALL PLAYERS TO INVADE IRELAND

Dan Howley of Wilmouth for the past five seasons catcher for the Portland team of the New England League, and Jack Ryan, who played with the Lowell team last year, will leave for Ireland on March 17 next, to play baseball in the Emerald Isle. Howley and Ryan will be accompanied by Tommy Gallagher and Johnny Howard.

BROWN NINE STARTS WORK IN THE CAGE

Battery candidates for the Brown University baseball nine will report to Coach Scott as a living next week and by March 1 the team should be in good condition for the season. Of the men who will report to Coach Brown on the diamond the 8th inst. the battery candidates are the most promising. Hadley has developed into a pretty fair backstop and Wood has been showing up well in practice. Wood was a member of the 1909 team.

BAT NELSON SPARS AT BOXING BENEFIT

NEW YORK, Jan. 7. A three-round exhibition, between Battling Nelson and Leach Cross, with the good-timer of the show of the following night, A. C. Thompson, was a benefit for a former local sporting writer, Al Smith, was given to-night who offered to assist in the benefit. Kid Abbott and Frankie Marr went on for two rounds, with honors generally in favor of Marr. Both Nelson and Billy Murphy and Ryan furnished plenty of action in their three-round bout, as did also Tommy Gallagher and Johnny Howard.

DECLINES OFFER TO COACH HOLY CROSS

William C. Prout, the Boston Athletic Association quarter-mile runner, has declined an offer to coach the Holy Cross college track team. It has been known that the Worcester Institution has been after Prout for some time, but as he intends to remain an amateur would not take the position.

TECH SENIORS WIN CLASS TRACK MEET

Technology seniors won the annual indoor inter-class track meet at the Tech gym on Garrison street by 34 points; the juniors second, 27 points, and the sophomore and freshman classes tied for third, with 13 points each.

W. C. Saucerry '11, was the star and won the 50 and 440-yard dashes and third in the pole vault.

EDDIE SHEVLIN TO BOX AT NEW CLUB

Eddie Sherlin, the Roxbury star, has received an offer to meet Young Loughrey at Philadelphia. He also received an offer to box at the Fatty Club of Lawrence. Eddie was forced to decline both offers. He had agreed to box some good welter weights at the opening show of the new club which will take place within two weeks.

Questions

By DANIEL W. GALLAGHER

SAY, little boy with that bright tin sword,
What would you do if a lion reared
And came and stood right over there—
Just back of your throne—that big high chair?
A great big lion—with eyes aflame—
With long white teeth and a tawny mane,
Like the terrible beast with threat'ning look,
Who gazes out from your picture book.
Would you march right up and strike him dead
Or would you hide 'neath your downy bed
And frighten him off with one great "Boo"?
Say, little boy, what would you do?

Say, little boy, with that great big gun
Would you laugh with glee and think it fun
If some dark night a fierce black bear
Should carry you off to his rocky lair?
Should seize your drum—that "rub-dub-d.
For some funny little short-eared cub,
Would you think, like bears, it a wondrous treat
When they told you acorns were good to eat?
Would you shoot them down had you the chance,
Or learn them how with a pat to dance
And lead them home in a day or two?
Say, little boy, what would you do?

Say, little boy, what would we do
With all the love that we give to you
If in some dark hour His wisdom willed
That your little voice be strangely stilled?
Then in the room where you used to play
The sword and gun would be laid away,
With the tiny shoes and the silent drum
The giant tops that would no more hum.
The picture books and the big high chair,
Yes, all your toys would we lock in there,
Then—through the years as we older grew—
Say, little boy, what would WE do?

A Story of Two Brothers

By ELLA WHEELER WILCOX

WHATEVER we dwell most upon mentally we bring ourselves into the closest contact with—that is why it so often occurs that we get most of what we most dislike, because our aversions and our fears occupy so large a portion of our secret meditations, even when we keep them out of our general conversation. Concentration upon whatever we most loathe is the surest way to draw it to us, but there must be no excitement or action in connection with our anticipation. Undue eagerness is oftener an accompaniment of fear than an associate of faith, and while the mighty words are ever true, "According to thy faith be it unto thee" and "According to thy word be it unto thee," unfortunately for the fulfilment of our hopes our mental word is often one of doubt rather than one of confidence.

HERE is an interesting little story

Two young men, brothers, started out in life, choosing widely different paths.

One chose a life of good deeds; of meditation; of prayer; of seeking to develop the highest qualities in himself.

The other chose a life of gayety and dissipation.

He used stimulants to urge his jaded appetites when Nature rebelled at being driven overtime; and he did all the reckless and foolish things which young men do when they are determined to drink to the dregs of what they call pleasure to the dregs.

Meantime this youth was not happy; he kept thinking about his brother who was living in peace and harmony with God's goodness and nobility; and he constantly pictured the calm and tranquil life he led and longed for his serenity as he lay awake in the small hours of the morning after a night of dissipation.

Oftimes in the day he longed for his brother as prayer, or in silent reflection, or going about on errands of mercy, and envied him

What Thought Can Do

While he was thinking in this way the brother in his godly life was worrying about the black sheep which had gone astray from the Master's fold.

His thought how he was looking and caring for his brother was being taken before them judges, as a case of drunk and disorderly, and he was awakened from his sleep in his quiet room and thinking how his poor lost brother was carousing with boon companions.

Now, this is what happened, so says the tale:

The bad brother, from continually picturing the moral life of the other, began to be converted to goodness and grew into a better man, while the good brother through dwelling on the thought of the evil things his brother was doing, became dissipated and reckless and went astray "on the bad."

So it behooves us to think and talk as little as possible about the misdeeds of others; and, while we are living moral and high lives in actuality, to keep our minds away from the paths of sinfulness and immorality where others may be straying.

Spiritual Health

In just the same way, while we are bestowing in the power of the mind to control the body, we must avoid thoughts and conversation about diseases and operations, we must resolutely think of health, vitality, youth, power, good digestion and strength.

When we are forced to see or hear of the evil and sin and sickness and crime in the world, we must drive the thoughts of these things as far away as quickly as possible, and we must say over the words which represent their antitheses. And when we are alone we must not permit the mental pictures of undesirable and unfortunate conditions to present themselves to our vision.

Instead on picturing goodness, beauty, charm, health, serenity, usefulness, power and peace and plenty; realize how temporary all conditions are in life, and know that the wrong conditions can not always last, and are therefore not fit subjects for your meditation

Make Right Conditions

Do whatever you can to make right conditions for the world, and one of the best ways for you to make sure that you begin is to give as little time and thought as possible to dwelling on wrong conditions

If people persist in talking to you about sin and sickness, change the conversation or get away from those who are speaking, or else shut your ears by turning your whole attention to beautiful thoughts.

Thoughts are things. And they create their own kind.

It is for you to decide what things you will create for yourself

Advice to the Lovelorn

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

MARRY THE FIRST ONE

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

I am a young girl of eighteen and am very fond of two young men this season.

One of them, has is of gentlemen friends who would go to any extent for him, and he is quite well off, whereas the other gentleman is not so well off, but is always a joy to tell a good story. He also means a very good impression upon first acquaintance.

I would like to know which one you, in this, would make the better husband.

A. F.

I think you [illegible] much the better husband [illegible] like him, and that is a very important point in his favor. The second man may be very gay and amusing, but I don't believe he would make nearly as good a husband. If you take my advice you will take the first one, providing, of course, that you love him well enough to marry him.

TIME WILL PROVE HIM

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

I am a young girl of nineteen and love a young man four years my senior. He is a good man in his business dealings, but in his private affairs he is one of the poor men. He promised never to go back to his old life again, and he has kept his promise. My parents object to my going with him. Kindly give me your good advice as I love him dearly, and I know he returns my love.

If he is sincere in his vows to reform time will prove his sincerity. Tell your parents that you love him, but for their sakes you will wait another year, and if he is still industrious and steady you will marry him at the end of that time.

Married Life the Second Year

By MABEL HERBERT URNER

THE DALTONS

THE Daltons were very rich, and Helen thought—very ordinary.

But Will Dalton was an influential man, and one who might be very helpful to a business boy. And since Mrs. Dalton had repeatedly invited them to come up some evening, Warren felt they should go.

Helen had not wanted to go, both because she frankly did not like Mrs. Dalton and because Will Dalton drank a great deal, and she thought his companionship anything but good for Warren.

However, when he insisted that they go one evening she reluctantly agreed. They took the subway to the Riverside Drive apartment where the Daltons lived, and where they were greeted most effusively.

Mrs. Dalton was in an elaborate lace negligee for which she kept apologizing. Although Helen knew she wore it not because she was tired, but because it was effective.

She was an undeniably handsome woman of a rather coarse type. And her apartment was an exact reflection of herself. It was lavishly and inharmoniously furnished. Everything seemed to have been bought because it was expensive and looked so.

Mrs. Dalton Brags

Mr. Dalton took Warren off to the library to smoke and, as Helen knew, to drink while Mrs. Dalton and she remained in the drawing room.

"To have this pillow at your back—no, the one is softer." And then Mrs. Dalton adjusted some rose silk pillows in her own chair and leaned back luxuriously.

"Oh, I'm simply dead! I do think being settled is the most tiresome thing. Mme. Eloise kept me just one hour this afternoon. She simply makes things on you! But, of course, they do fit—the lines in this are wonderful. Did you ever have her?"

"I'm afraid she's too expensive for me," Helen answered quietly.

"Why, she doesn't seem any higher than most of the others. I'm only paying $1.5 for this gown, and I've often paid Vallier $200. You really can't get a dinner gown now for much less."

Helen wanted to say that she had never paid more than $65 in her life, but instead she murmured, "I suppose not."

And then Mrs. Dalton launched into details of other gowns and other extravagances.

"Well, I wonder if those men think we don't want something to drink, too?" she demanded finally.

"Oh, not for me!" Helen said hastily.

"Why of course—it'll cost you. Will! Will!" she called loudly. "Will!" louder still!

Helen Is Shocked

"Hey there!" And Mr. Dalton appeared in the door much flushed and with a cigar in his hand. Warren was just behind him, also smoking and also flushed.

"What are you going to bring us—you selfish people?"

"Why of course of course You must pardon me, Mrs. Curtis—we were so busy talking——"

"Oh cut that and get us something to drink," Mrs. Dalton demanded.

Helen looked at her in amazement. How could any woman speak like that?

But evidently her husband thought nothing of it, for he only laughed and asked: "Well, what will you have?"

Mrs. Dalton turned to Helen. "A highball, or would you rather have cognac?"

"Highball at all. Really I do not wish anything."

"Oh, of course you do! Bring us two Scotch highballs, Will. I'm sure Mrs. Curtis will change her mind when they come."

Helen flushed. If Mrs. Dalton thought that was hospitality, she thought it was exceedingly rude.

She Refuses to Drink

In a few moments Mr. Dalton brought in the two glasses, and drew up a little table to place them on. Helen made no further protest, but her glass remained untouched.

"Oh, now you're going to drink some of it?" Mr. Dalton pleaded.

"To be sure she is," urged Mrs. Dalton. "Why, yes, Helen, a little won't hurt you," agreed Warren.

"No, thank you. I really prefer not." And then fearing her answer had been rather stiff, she softened it with: "But I should like a glass of vichy."

And this was brought her.

"But don't stay in here; let's all go in the library," suggested Mr. Dalton. "It's much more comfortable there."

The library was more comfortable; it was not quite so ornate and pretentious. A bottle of Scotch and one of rye, some vichy and a box of cigars were on the centre table.

Helen felt that already Warren had had too much to drink, and she was anxious to go home. She waited a few moments and then seized the time.

Delay and Highballs

"Oh, it's early yet," Mr. Dalton said cheerfully, "just a little after ten."

"But Mrs. Dalton was very tired when we came (the excuse given for the neglect), and we really shouldn't stay longer."

"Oh, Nell's all right. Why, the evening's just begun!"

And as Mrs. Dalton added her assurance that she wasn't at all tired now and that they never went to bed until after 1 o'clock, there was nothing to do but wait a little longer. In the meantime the men consumed more cigars and more highballs, while Helen looked on with anxious disapproval.

At last she rose determinedly. "Now, Warren, we really must go."

There were more protests, more assurances that it was "still early," but this time she was inflexible. And a little later they were speeding —— on the subway.

"Mighty nice people—those Daltons," Warren said with enthusiasm. "Will's a mighty souled fellow—and his wife's a fine woman."

Helen refrained from any comment.

"We ought to see more of them," he went on. "We must have them down some evening next week—and go up there ourselves. They seem keen on having us come."

That "Stand-Offish" Air

Still Helen was silent. He was always more easily irritated after he had been drinking, and she had no desire to start any violent argument by differing with him now.

"Why, what's the matter?" suspiciously. "Don't you like them?"

"Oh, yes," vaguely.

"Well, you didn't seem over cordial. You were pretty stiff about that drink. Wouldn't have hurt you to have taken a little. And you were darned anxious to get away," growing more irritable as he thought about it. "What was the matter, anyway?"

"Why, nothing, only I thought Mrs. Dalton was tired and we shouldn't stay too late."

"Well, the next time see that you enter more into the spirit of things. And don't air a prejudice with that 'stand-offish' air! Dalton's a mighty decent fellow—and I intend to cultivate him."

Helen nodded a weary assent. And the clear drew into their station.

Helps in Care of Clothes

MANY a dollar can be saved by knowing how to dry feathers, plumes and boas. Shake off all the water that will come and then hold over direct heat, such as a radiator or stove top, shaking gently all the time. This will separate and make the fibers curl beautifully. Too great heat will burn, so it should be very gentle.

Plumes should be held with the tips of the fingers and not near the heat.

Umbrellas are rarely dried properly to prolong the usefulness of the silk. They should be closed and stood handle down to dry. Never should they drain until quite dry. In this position the moisture can run off, while if left point down the dampness soaks in about the ribs, eventually rotting the silk there. To open them to dry curves the ribs so that the umbrella will not fold tightly.

To clean white silk or linen parasols open and scrub with a soft brush and thick lather made of tepid water and white soap. Go over every inch several times to avoid streaks. Rinse well—in a bathtub if possible to get off every particle of lather and dry open on the shade.

All garments touching the flesh should be spread to air, whether they are to be worn again or consigned to the laundry bag. White flannel shirt waists in Summer should be covered with the cleaner and left to be brushed in the morning. White veils should be aired after each wearing, and chiffon veils should be washed out in tepid water rinsed thoroughly, pulled smooth, and hung to dry. Never use hot water on silk; it shrinks it.

It is well to form the habit of going over the clothes to be worn next day before one retires, no matter how late it may be, and look after the little things that invariably need attention. One can nap a little longer in the morning without the rest destroying what is necessary to be done. Many things to be done before one can dress in time for the last call for breakfast.

CHAPTER XII.

How Nandha Was Avenged

THE travelers from beyond Moradabad having reached Kaisdoongie, were discovered to be men of consequence by the Thanadar, and were invited by him to join the circle of the great round his fire on the evening of their arrival.

It was very warm, and the dismal silence of the night was broken by the distant howl of a lonely jackal. The chief lighting flickered fitfully over the foothills, mocking the creeping Terai with its faint promise of a cooling dewfall.

The conversation round the fire flagged, and the hookah passed languidly from hand to hand. Those present would have retired to a deep, bad sleep been possible; but as that was a consummation not easily attained in the season of the year, they preferred their present miseries to those that came in the wakeful night watches when the Terai is stirring.

From Doon's arrival was a slight boon to those who were wont to assemble round the Thanadar's fire; there was always the possibility of his having news; and, besides, him seemed to acquire fresh vitality from contact with his vigorous personality

"Sure Sign of Rain"

The strangers were especially grateful for his arrival, and were hard to him his place beside the fire, the hookah was come passed to him.

"Any tidings, coach-wan," inquired the Thanadar.

"None, sahib; save that the great frog in the well at Lal Kooah who is as old as the well, and wiser than most men—saw a voice just ere I started, and the Nandha [illegible] started on that morning, the mussh to de me to drive to the dakbungalow for a sahib who had been sent to stay the anger of him.

Brothers, when I went to the dak-bungalow, there came forth to me a man-child—a Farinji—whose chi was as smooth as of grain of rice and hard.

"A small [illegible] and [illegible] and [illegible] the horses did an instant [illegible] lessness is thy passport through the jungle, Father Rice had been drowned, and their driver with them, long ere this."

Hint of danger that might be encountered in the jungle having been given, one of the strangers was moved to ask concerning the lame tiger of thuliwout, part of whose biography they had heard from Ram Deen at Lal Kooah on the previous day.

"Coach-wan Ji, want thou not afraid to carry the mail after the slaying of thy brother, Nandha?"

"Those who carry the Queen's mail may not stop for fear. Nevertheless, fear rode with me a day and a night after the death of Nandha.

"It is a great telling," said the little carrier, nodding at the wayfarers, whilst Ram Deen "drank tobacco."

When Ram Deen had passed the hookah to his neighbor, he went on:

"Brothers, on the day that Nandha was carried off by the tiger I sent word to the postmaster of Nainl Tal concerning the [illegible] and the evil colt [illegible] that word that the Rewar [illegible] would send me help.

How a Tiger Kills

"Ye know that a tiger kills not two days in succession, so I had no fear when I traversed the road to and from Lal Kooah [illegible] the second day after the slaying of Nandha [illegible] started on that morning, the mussh to de me to drive to the dak-bungalow for a sahib who had been sent to stay the anger of him.

Brothers, when I went to the dak-bungalow, there came forth to me a man-child—a Farinji—whose chi was as smooth as of grain of rice and hard.

"A small [illegible] and [illegible] the horses did an instant [illegible] thought of the tiger that, I knew, would be waiting for me, and taking pity on him, I said, 'The jungle beneathout is full of wild fowl, sahib, an iwere pity, when sikhar is so plentiful, you should waste the morning looking for budmash tiger who will not come forth for two days as yet.'

"He answered me never a word, but went into the dak-bungalow for something he had forgotten; and, whilst he was gone, his butler spoke to me, saying, 'Coach-wan, make no mistake; the life depends upon thy doing the sahib's bidding. He is a very Rustum, and he knoweth not fear for all he is so young.'

"He is a man after my own heart, then, sirdar; but, mashallah! I would he had a beard,' I replied.

"Presently the young sahib came forth with an empty bottle in one hand and his gun in the other. Throwing the bottle into the air, he shattered it with a bullet ere it reached the ground. Startled by the report, a jackal fled from the rear of the dak-bungalow toward the jungle, and the sahib sped it right with another bullet. Then reploaded his gun, he took his seat beside me on the mail-cart, saying, 'Blow on thy jingle coach-wan and gunshoo our road.' Says Shere Bahadoor, His Majesty the Tiger.

"He is a brave jawan (youth), brothers, but he was very young, and, belike, he had a mother; so I answered in my beard to say him, whatever might befall.

"As we proceeded, he questioned me concerning the killing of Nandha, speaking [illegible] as one who goeth to shoot black partridge.

Old and Cunning

"He is lame, coach-wan, and will doubt yes be waiting for us by the Bore bridge,' said the sahib. 'As soon as he appears off the mail-cart, and then return when your horses will let you.'

"'Bachlok thee, sahib,' I answered; 'the Lame One of Huldwani is old and cunning; he is no fawn thou seekest this morning. Perchance the strear will dispatch some great shikari to help thee in this hunting. Jingo send we may not meet the tiger, but if we should, shame befall me if I permit thee to leave the mail-cart whilst the horses are able to run!'

"Per answer, my brothers, the sahib flushed red, and calling me coward, he drave his elbow into my stomach with such force that the reins fell from my hands. Taking them up, the while I fought for my breath, he turned the horses round, saying, 'Jackal may not hunt a tiger. I have need of a man with me this morning, and poor fewn, my butler, shall take thy place.'

"The sahib, being a man, will not darken my face in the eyes of Kaladoongie,' I said, 'make for thy self that which thou art, and I will drive thee to Jehandum an'flou [illegible] for no man hath ever called me coward before.'

"Then the sahib looked in my face, as I tucked the ends of my beard under my girdle, and seeing that my eyes met his four-square, he gave up the reins to me. Saying, 'If thou blamest me fatet I will kill thee like a dog,' and he showed me the rifle at a place that he had in his pocket.

"We spake no more together, but when we came to the Bore bridge I shook the [illegible] with a blast from my pugle.

"'Shabash! coach-wan,' exclaimed the sahib, 'thou art a man, indeed, and shalt have Shere Bahadoor's skin as recompense for the hurt to thy stomach. Bid him come again.'

"Half a mile beyond the bridge, as we sped along the level road above the river I again blew upon the bugle. The sound had scarcely ceased, when we heard the angry roar of a charging tiger.

"'Him!' exclaimed the sahib; and I [illegible] threw the frightened horses on their haunches, while he leaped to the ground.

"Then, whilst the horses tore along the road, I looked back over my shoulder and beheld the Lame One bound into the middle of the road, and the sahib blow on his fingers, as one would whistle to a dog. The great beast stopped on the instant and crouched on the ground, ready to spring. Jingo send we may not meet the tiger, and I prayed to Nana Deoi to befriend the young fool.

"When he was with in thirty paces or so from the tiger, the sahib halted and lowered the gun to his shoulder. The next instant there was the crack of a rifle, and the

Desperate Desmond

SOON AS I CAN CUT MY WAY OUT I WILL ESCAPE FROM THIS DEAD PRISON
YOU CUB!
MUST BE LIONS AROUND. FLOATING A SHOUT!
ONE OF US MUST DIE. THEN TO FIND MY RIVAL!
BOOLA!
HAVE COURAGE ROSAMOND, I WILL SAVE YOU
SOUNDS LIKE A LION. MUST BE HE!
HA, HA SHE DIES, HA, HA!
CLAUDE! HERE!
WITH THE SWORD I'LL SEND THEM ALL GOING TO THE LIONS HA, HA, HA, HA!
WE ARE HAPPY TOGETHER AND DO NOT KNOW I'LL BE DYING IN THIS JUNGLE!

There's an old proverb, which says, "Let sleeping dogs lie," and it's good dope, too. The same rule holds good as regards lions, only more so. Desmond is no wrecker of his own, but he hopes by his superior strength to wrest the spear from the grasp of his royal opponent. But when it comes to strong arm work, the King is right there, too.

In the meantime Claude Eclaire is engaged in a thrilling hand-to-hand combat with the Cannibal King. Our hero has no weapon of his own, but he hopes by his superior strength to wrest the spear from the grasp of his royal opponent. But when it comes to strong arm work, the King is right there, too.

Just at this moment a shot rings out. A bullet from the rifle of one of those English hunters in the background cuts the King's spear in two, and Claude is free to get the business end of it. Whereupon the Cannibal King suddenly discovers that he has a pressing engagement about six miles away.

Let us return for a moment to Desmond and Rosamond. The cowardly cur sees the lion now, and he doesn't like the beast's looks a little bit. Neither do we, for that matter, but we would not desert a lady in the hour of peril. We hate to brag, but what we would do to that lion would be good and plenty.

Claude is no coward. He'd think nothing of fighting a dozen lions for Rosamond's sake. But he has an chance to prove his courage this time, for the heat-ers arrive on the scene with their elephant just in time to rescue both Claude and Rosamond. It's a shame to spoil a rousing good scrap that way.

There's Desmond again. What is the villain up to this time? As we live, he's feeding the elephant peanuts. But you can bet your bottom dollar that he has doing it out of the kindness of his heart. He has some sinister motive or other, which will be fully explained in Monday's pictures.

The Way to Health

By JAMES J. MONTAGUE

Dr. Enrico Serafini of Italy says that talking too much breaks down the nerves and ruins the health.—News Item.

SAID I to Mike Yeller—a barker was he
From Revere, which sits by the peanut fringed sea—
Said I: "Mister Yeller, your hands are like hams.
Your neck is as thick as an Aberdeen ram's;
You fight like a wildcat; you eat like a horse!
You've got all a pile-driver's physical force.
And now will you tell me what makes you so hale,
The ocean's ozone? or the bracing mixed ale?"

He paused for a second, my visage to scan,
And then he replied, "I'm a foolish man."

SAID I to Bill Bryan—Bill Bryan's the man
Who runs for High Office whenever he can—
Said I: "Mister Bryan, I do not observe
That you are deficient in what we term nerve.
I never noticed you squander your wealth
In futile pursuit of a hold upon health.
I pray you, sir, tell me, what gives you your clutch
On strength; is it thinking? or running so much?"

Said he, "I'm healthy and strong, as you say,
And it's due to the fact that I've nothing to say."

SAID I to T. Roosevelt—a man, you remember,
Who figured in public before last November—
Said I: "Mister Roosevelt, with hands that are bare
The helpless he lion to fragments you tear;
You plunge death the violet waves of the Nile
And pull out the teeth of the gaunt crocodile;
You fight with the rhino in continents dusky;
Perhaps you'll inform me what makes you so husky?"

Said he, "For the truth you no longer need seek,
I never give way to the impulse to speak."

The Old Maids' Club

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

The President Accepts an Invitation to Dine

THE president of the Old Maids' Club had had a hard day. Some way or other, things had gone wrong from morning till night.

Her tiny apartment was all that the hears of an old maid could wish, but the pipes had frozen the night before, and of the twelve tenants in the house she had been the last to receive the plumber's attention.

Mrs. Smith and Mrs. Jones and Mrs. Black had all the hot water they wanted by noon. It was 5 o'clock now, and she had not a drop.

In some days men were useful after all, for Mr. Smith and Mr. Jones and Mr. Black had seen the landlord early in the morning and insisted that the plumber go at once to their apartments.

She had seen the landlord also, but he paid no attention to her feminine plaints.

That was one reason why she was tired.

She did not feel like cooking her own dinner, it would be fun to go to the cafe.

But you couldn't flirt there alone, or even with another woman. You must have a man as escort to be allowed in the cosy precincts.

Picture-Hanging

Tiresome rules! Couldn't a woman have any fun without a man tagging along?

Some day it made her feel very cross and just a tiny forlorn.

What in the world was the matter with that picture of the Coliseum? It was large and heavy and never would hang straight. Now was as good a time to fix it as any, she supposed. Another larger and stronger nail was what it needed. She thought she had one in the tool box.

She fussed about in the tool box until she found the right size, and then, mounting a stool, began to drive the nail.

Bang! went the hammer and chipped off a goodly piece of the picture moulding.

Another vicious bang and the hammer landed fair and square on the old maid's thumb and forefinger.

She was a sensible cry, the hammer and nail dropped, the stool tottered and Marian grasped wildly at the frame of the Coliseum.

A crash, and picture, hammer, stool and maid lay in a heap on the floor.

Marian sat up, put her injured finger in her mouth and surveyed the wreckage.

A Welcome Ring

"A man," she murmured. "A fool, every-day man would have driven that nail as the first whack."

Then, suddenly, without an instant's warning, the president of the Old Maids' Club began to cry.

In angry amazement at her weakness she sat there, cold, forlorn, hungry.

"I—I hate everything," she sobbed.

A quick ring of the bell brought her to time.

Stumbling in the gloom of the little hallway, she opened the door.

"Is this the headquarters of the Old Maids' Club?" said a laughing, manly voice. "Because, if so, I want to see the president."

The Solution

"Why, Fred—what do you mean? What do you want?"

"I want you, to be sure: haven't I always, girl?"

Then, as she drew back, "Don't be frightened, Marian, I'm not going to hurt you. I simply want to know if you'll take pity on me and come out to dinner with me."

The president of the Old Maids' Club looked at her caller doubtfully.

"Oh, I don't believe I'd better," she began. Then, as her eyes fell upon the broken chair, the overturned stool, the hammer and nails—

"Yes, I will, too. Where will we go?"

"How about the cafe; that's a good place. Do you often go there?"

"Well, not so very often. You see, a girl can't go there alone or with another girl, and the Old Maids—she paused. "Oh, yes, of course, the old maids don't go out with men, to start it?"

"Yes," she answered demurely; "that's it—At least, I believe they don't."

"Never tell," finished the man.

WOMAN'S WORK

A GOOD part of farm work in Portugal is performed by women, who see no reason why they should regard digging, hoeing and plowing as the work of men alone. The man who owns a few acres of land will often leave its cultivation to his wife and daughters while he labors as carpenter, stone mason or cooper, for cask-making is one of their important industries. He also likes to get a job as a waiter in one of the numerous hotels at seaside resorts, for the country is thronged with Continental and English visitors. Women share in the heavy work of the fields as well. There are female porters, laborers on the docks, quarry workers, tenders, and even women coal-heavers, disburden, or rather unburden, coal-laden vessels.

Strong and hardy as their husbands and brothers, and accustomed to the hardest physical labor as well, of course, it rather takes away the glamour of romance when one sees a young woman with finely chiseled features and beautiful black eyes digging with spade and mattock or heaving a basket of coal into a ship's hold with as much ease as the American girl plays tennis and golf. One cannot help wondering what they would consider hard conditions, so the reformer would probably have his labor for the ladies if he effected a change in the department of Portuguese national existence.

Excellent Cakes

SOME SUCCESSFUL RECIPES

HAZELNUT CAKE

SIX eggs, one cup sugar, half a cup hazelnuts, half a cup almonds grated fine, one-quarter cup flour, half teaspoon baking powder, flavor with half teaspoon vanilla. Beat yolks and sugar until light, add nuts, flour, baking powder and vanilla, and last the stiffly beaten whites. Bake in a shallow pan lined with buttered paper in a moderate oven. When done pour out and let cool, cover with a boiled icing then spread over it some currant jelly cover again with icing, then sprinkle thick ly with finely cut hazelnuts

Boiled Icing—Boil without stirring one cup sugar, half cup of water, until it spins a thread, pour on the stiffly beaten whites of two eggs, add one-eighth tea spoon cream tartar, flavor with vanilla.

WALNUT FLAKES

ONE cupful of walnuts cut fine, one cup full of dates cut fine, two eggs well beaten, one pinch salt, one teaspoonful of baking powder, one cupful of powdered sugar, three tablespoonfuls of flour. Bake in one half hour in slow oven in thin layers. Bread into pieces in shirred cups and serve with whipped cream.

NUT LOAF

FOUR cups of sifted flour, four level teaspoonfuls of baking powder, one teaspoonful salt, one-half cup of sugar, one cup nut meats chopped fine, two cups sweet milk, two eggs. This makes two loaves. Mix and sift all the dry ingredients together, then add beaten eggs and milk. Bake in moderate oven about forty-five minutes. This makes two loaves. I find that this bread is fine for the lunch box just buttered, or lettuce with salad dressing may be placed between two thin slices for a change.

SUNSHINE CAKE.

INGREDIENTS: Whites of seven eggs, yolks of five eggs, one cup granulated sugar, scant cupful flour, salt spoon of cream tartar, pinch of salt, one teaspoon of vanilla or one-half teaspoon each of vanilla and lemon. Separate the eggs and put the whites in a large mixing bowl, and the yolks in a small bowl. Measure and sift the sugar seven times and set aside, then sift the flour five times; have cream of tartar and flavoring on the table, then beat the whites five minutes, add salt and cream of tartar; beat some more, then add slowly the sugar, then the beaten yolks; then add the flour. Do not beat but fold this in with a spoon. Add the flavoring. Put in an ungreased tin, sprinkle a little flour in tin, and shake around; then take a teaspoon and remove all the air bubbles, place in a moderate oven, and bake from thirty minutes to one hour. A fair deal depends upon the fire. The first twenty minutes the oven should be real warm; then slowly decrease the heat. When baked turn upside down and place a wet cloth on the tin for a few seconds, then with a knife the cake may easily be removed.

MOCK ANGEL FOOD.

ONE cupful of sugar, one and one-half tablespoonfuls of shortening, one-half cupful of milk, one heaping cupful of flour, two tablespoonfuls of baking powder Mix all together, then put the whites of two eggs into a bowl and beat until stiff. Then gently fold the white into the batter; do not stir them in. Add a teaspoonful of vanilla. This is an original recipe, and if correctly made it will be hard to distinguish it from the real angel food cake. But be careful not to stir the whites of eggs into the cake, but fold them in carefully

No More Wrinkles

BEAUTIFUL BUST

Superfluous Hair Vanishes Like Magic By a New Discovery

Pimples and Blackheads Removed Forever

Let this woman send you free, everything she wrote, and beautify your face and form quickly.

SHE LOOKS LIKE A GIRL OF 19

This clever woman has not a wrinkle upon her face; she has perfected a marvelous, simple method which brought a wonderful change in her face in a single night. The wrinkles, scrawls and lines, upon the least, her method is truly wonderful to behold.

"She made herself the woman she is today and brought about the wonderful change in her appearance in a secret and pleasant manner. Her description is as clear and fair as that of a child. She turned her sunken cheeks into a beautiful bust and well developed form, she had thin, scraggy arms and neck made plump, full and beautiful by her own methods and removed sallow blackhead and pimple complexion as if by a single night.

You can imagine her joy, when by her own genius discovery, she removed every wrinkle from her face and developed her form in such a short time. "Superfluous hair, moles, warts and other blemishes vanished as if by magic.

Dr. Nevo's method rallies Floriot about his lonely life and suggests that he marry again, intimating that his sister might make a capable spouse. Floriot then tells of his wife and his struggle to crush out her memory.

While Dr. Chaunel and Floriot are in the child's sick room, there is a knock at the door and the maid admits Jacqueline—the runaway wife. She had just learned of her child's illness and has returned to beg that she may see him.

Floriot enters, at first not recognizing his wife. When he does he orders her from the house.

She begs forgiveness, tells of her deep love for her husband despite her actions to the contrary, says she never would have erred had he not neglected her and thrown her into the company of their mutual friend, and says she never had any love for him.

Floriot is greatly stirred, being unable to conceal the fact that he still loves his wife.

Still, he orders her away and tells her to go back to her lover.

"He is dead," she whispers.

The tenderness that had been growing in him for her is turned to scorn.

"So that is why you have returned," he says.

Jacqueline realizes she is losing her advantage. But she spurs herself to remember and plead.

M. Noel, who had disappeared and was reported to have killed himself, is found alive and tells Chesnel and Floriot the cause. He had loved a woman, but she had chosen another. He wanted to forget. When he learns of Jacqueln's disappearance he is greatly wrought up and begins pursuit.

Floriot tells Noel how he had saved Lescelles from conviction with other members of the Plaisee Detective Bureau, and that Lescelles is the man who betrayed him and fled with Jacqueline. Noel still urges that Jacqueline be rescued.

CHAPTER VI.—(Continued)

"YOU don't answer! And because she—erred—because she has wounded your vanity by proffering—I'm not defending her!—by proffering another man to you when you did everything you could to make her do it, you throw her out and close your door against her! And you tell me you love her!"

"Gon knows I love her!" groaned Floriot.

Noel turned away with a short, scornful laugh.

"You loved her!" he exclaimed, contemptuously.

"Still!"

Noel wheeled on him with flashing eyes.

"I say it's not true!" he cried. "I tell you, you do not love her! Love is stronger than hate, for nothing can stop it! True love will trample down any obstacle to pardon, to sacrifice! And no one who has not suffered can be sure that he has loved. No, my friend," he went on more calmly, "you didn't love Jacqueline. You loved her green and her beauty and her charm, but it did not enter into your heart. If you had really loved her she could have done you no irreparable wrong; for, even when she made this terrible error, you would have found an excuse."

Floriot sprang up with an angry protest.

"No, no!" he cried. "Any man in the same place would have done what I did! You would—what would you do?"

Noel hesitated a moment. "I don't know—exactly—what I should do," he replied gravely, "because I am a man with a man's limitations. But I know what you ought to do."

"I will never forget her! I——"

"Listen to me, Floriot," Louis interrupted his friend sternly. "Jacqueline is the mother of your child. If her child and you have dared to separate them for life! Instead of holding out a helping hand to her, you have thrown her out on your cross! You might have saved her from her future and you have given her the first push down the hill that leads we both know where! Wait! Listen to me! You are a public servant. When you plead against a criminal you ask for a verdict and a sentence in proportion to the crime committed. Your wife loved you and threw you a scrap of paper against you and is sorry for her sin, and yet——She rules me with bitter passion—and yet you have sentenced her to misery, despair and death!"

A Growing Fright

A growing fright was driving the angry gleam from Floriot's eyes as he raised his hand in protest.

"No! No! I——" he began in an altered voice.

"Yes! Yes!" broke in his friend. "What will you do? What will become of her? Have you ever thought of that? She will have a dozen lovers, and you will be responsible? Have you ever thought of that?"

"You have not! I can see it in your faces! And I suppose you consider yourself an honorable man, a model husband, a blameless father! Oh, you are good duty, Floriot, by the living God! I'll do it for you!"

Floriot started up and moved toward his friend with queer, halting steps.

"What—do—you—mean?" came from his lips in hoarse, more than a whisper.

Noel looked squarely into his eyes.

"I mean that your wife shall find in my house the place that you refuse her! My life shall be hers and I will ask nothing in exchange."

Floriot halted and stiffened and for a dozen seconds the two men gazed into each other's eyes. Then Floriot spoke slowly and coldly.

"It seems to me, Noel, that you are presuming a little beyond the privilege which even a friend——"

"In this case I have more than the privilege—of a friend!" was the calm reply, with a note of meaning in the voice.

Floriot continued to stare at him with a mixture of wonder and resentment. Then a sudden thought made him catch his breath with a sharp hiss. His figure relaxed and he took a half-step forward.

"Noel! Is—is—she pregnant?" he gasped. "Answer me! . . . She was the woman—you loved!"

The blue eyes did not waver.

"Yes, I was Jacqueline! And," he added, bitterly, "I loved her better, if not more, than you did!"

In the nerve-wrecking night Floriot had undergone, it seemed, every emotion. This last shock numbed him. He groped his way to a chair and with both hands on his head tried to collect his wandering wits and grasp the meaning of Noel's admission.

Noel Had Loved Jacqueline

Noel had loved Jacqueline! This was the woman for whom he had tried to kill himself! His brain reeled dizzily and he stared down at the carpet with unseeing eyes. It put his friend in a strange and almost incomprehensible light. All that he had said and done now took on a different aspect. Noel had loved her! He still loved her and defended her! All that his friend had said, all that Jacqueline had said, in his Madonna Vavenue-all swept back over him with a new meaning! Was he wrong? Should he have looked at his face—the impulse that he strangled almost as the thought crossed his mind? Noel was speaking but he barely heard the words.

"I loved her for years before your marriage," he was saying. "Many and many a time I made up my mind to speak to you, but I never had the courage. I could tell her! I was afraid to risk everything on a word. Again and again I went away on my long wanderings, trying to show myself that I wanted nothing more than my freedom. The farther I traveled from St. Pierre the more miserable I grew and I always came back more in love than ever.

There was no grief or pain in his voice. He was still the judge denouncing the culprit.

"Then I began to think that she was falling in love with you! I tried again to put her out of my hands and to tell her I loved, but I couldn't. I ran away again and this time I made up my mind that I would never come back. I got as far as Genoa and bought a ticket for the next east-bound P. & O. Then I definitely missed the boat and the next one. I couldn't drag myself away from Genoa.

"The next day, without hardly knowing it happened, I found myself in the railway station, on my way back to France. I said nearly a hundred her house. I heard her your betrothal——"

He paused for a moment and eyed his friend's bowed figure.

"I suppose you wonder, Louis, why I was not more completely overcome and horrified by your story of your sadness. My madness carried me a little farther. I, too, set up in my home with a resolve one night trying to decide whether I should kill you or myself or both of us."

Floriot gave no sign that he had heard.

No Greater Love Than This

"The old Padre told me once when I was a boy," he went on in a monotonous tone, "there is a line somewhere in the holy writings which says, 'Greater love hath no man than this, that he lay down his life for his friends.' But his friend ought to show that he appreciates the sacrifice!" He paused again for a moment.

"If I dreamed," he said with stern calmness, "that Jacqueline had been untrue to me, that she was in love with another man, I would have killed you, my friend, before I tried to kill myself!"

"Yes, I was Jacqueline! And," he added, bitterly, "I loved her better, if not more, than you did!"

Floriot rose instantly—dazed, dread and the fight, pounded by warring hopes in his face. He moved unsteadily over toward his friend with both hands outheld. Noel seized it in an eager, painful grip, and they locked into each other's eyes with trembling lips.

Then, without a word, they passed down the hall, and out of the house.

CULPRIT VII.
The Wanderers

YOU will find in the chronicle of Matthew of Paris (and a reference to it in Longfellow's Golden Legend) a legend of a Jew who refused a resting place on the bench of his door to the Friend of the World on the journey to His Calvary. And as He walked on He said:

"I go to My rest in My Father's house, but thou shalt wander o'er the earth till I come again."

Many great writers have loved to believe the strange old tale, and it has been immortalized in prose and verse.

As the curse was launched, try to imagine that the accursed Jew felt in his heart a great dread and unrest, and he rose from the bench and fled across the Saviour and struck out across the desert.

The way was hopeless for his further punishment the wind piled sand-dunes in his path, and as he toiled over them new ones arose and he was in the form of the cross. The palm trees were as crosses through the heat haze, and the sun, as he was near death from thirst and heat, but he could not die.

And when he came to the mountains the horrible beasts were as crosses, and the birds and the crags. He turned and sought the plains, and the crosses crowded and the icebergs rose in cold and silting crosses. In the night he camped among the jungles, in the creepers at his feet and the vines crossed he saw the sign of him who walked on to Calvary.

Wandering o'er the face of the earth in suffering of the body and misery of the soul, praying daily for the death that he could not find, he has gone on, and always about his path the hated symbol of his curse.

Louis Floriot thought often of the queer old legend as the dark years that followed that night in the house at Passy. Some one there said that the greatest hell on earth is reserved for the man who refuses to pray. Floriot from his wife's funeral and begins to ask himself whether he was or was not responsible for her death. But there is one even more terrible than that—believing that he is in a large measure responsible for her shame. And Louis Floriot stretched himself on the rack of torture every night of his life.

When he and Noel set out on their search they fully expected to find her within forty eight hours at the longest. They learned at St. Pancy station that a woman answering Jacqueline's description had taken a train for Paris a short time before they arrived: so that simplified the hunt. They roamed through the cafes of the better sort and examined the registers of the largest hotels, and then, one night, planning to get help in the morning.

They had found no clew after spending the day at the Prefecture, but when they took breakfast together they were avoiding each other's eyes as they talked.

What It Costs to "Come Out"

Splendid double-page feature, superbly illustrated, tells of the increased cost of launching a debutante on the crest of the social wave. Read it in the SUNDAY AMERICAN.

OPEN NATIONAL SHOW TO-NIGHT

NEW YORK, Jan. 7.—While this is the last day of the Independent and Importers' Motor Shows, thinking laymen, if they be careful, one might say that the excitement had but just commenced. All New York is waiting in eager suspense for the opening of the Eleventh National Automobile Show of the Association of Licensed Automobile Manufacturers, and when the doors of Madison Square Garden are thrown open at 8 o'clock to-night, it is anticipated that one of the greatest crowds of automobile enthusiasts that ever attended the opening night will be on hand. It is expected that all records for attendance will be broken, and that the success of the show will be greatly earnest those which have been held in the past.

All In Readiness.

The interior of the big amphitheatre receives the finishing touches to-day, and when the doors are opened to-night to the public everything will be in readiness. A small army of men have been working night and day for the past week, and those forming the Garden into a semblance of a Roman amphitheatre, which is to form the setting for the display of the cars. The well-organized band of carpenters, decorators, steel workers, plasterers, carpet layers, painters, electricians and wood workers are fast nearing the close of their task, and when the Garden is completed it will present a striking picture, which will surpass in brilliancy anything which has ever been seen there before.

Those who are familiar with the general appearance of the Garden will be amazed at the wondrous transformation. Thousands of yards of staple blue cloth has been used to cover the big arena, and the gallery fronts have been in constant operation, and everything is inside and inside getting the goods into the building, for everything must be in position by 8 o'clock to-night.

Every train which arrives in the city is bringing large numbers of motor enthusiasts and the large hotels are fast filling up.

DON'T UNDRESS FOR BED and the reasons why will be told in the Sunday AMERICAN.

OLD MINUET AT CITY SQUARE CLUB DANCE

An old time minuet is being arranged as the feature of the first annual dance of the City Square outing Club, an organization of Charlestown young people, now coming. Real costumes and the powdered wigs worn by the gentlemen when minuets were in vogue will be donned for the dance. The date of the affair is Friday, February 3, and the place is Bonjean Hall, Charlestown.

TO-DAY'S STOCK MARKETS

STATE ST. NEWS FOR INVESTORS

There has been an extensive drawing of checks on Paris of late, and this is interpreted as foreshadowing purchases of American securities on the part of the French on a large scale.

The majority of the trades made continue to be of a professional character, but at the same time the interest has been busy in his quiet way. He has picked up a large volume of securities, and in addition to this the foreigner has been buying very freely.

There is more activity in the stock market on the part of the pool managers than there was, and the bull leaders look at the best sign they have seen in a long time. It indicates that more money is being furnished by the banks for speculative purposes in greater volume than heretofore.

What is regarded as one of the most hopeful indications at this time is the confidence not to say optimism, of the insiders in American railroads. They appear to be at all afraid of the coming decision of the United States Supreme Court in the rate case. Trading on the curb started briskly, with a few of the more important issuing up fractional gains. Later the market in them became irregular and the early gains were wiped out.

The general tone in the early trading was second in Canadian Pacific, which dropped 1¼ points in the first twenty minutes, and Missouri Pacific, which fell back to 46, a net loss of 2 points.

Trading on the curb started briskly, with a few of the more important issuing up fractional gains. Later the market in them became irregular and the early gains were wiped out.

The general tone toward the close became strong and active, and the quotations of practically the entire list rose to new high prices for the present session.

There is a new report in connection with the Standard Oil Gas stocks. It is possible that the dividends may be increased and that "rights" may be given the Consolidated Gas, but it is intimated from Albany that a legislative investigation will be made of the electrical end of the company. There are rumors that the company has been selling electricity at 30 cents a kilowatt hour, a price too high to small ones, and it seems as if this would be a violation of its charter as a public service corporation. The price of electricity is too high altogether, and since the company takes so much trouble to conceal its enormous profits from its stockholders, the newly installed authorities at Albany would do a good thing to make these profits a matter of public record.

Although officials denials are issued that prices of steel are being cut, reports persist of constant undersselling. In Chicago it is said that steel bars are being sold at $2 a ton under the official prices. The official quotation for steel bars in Chicago has been lowered $1 a ton. In Philadelphia the cut is said to be $2 a ton.

The prices will be considered at the meeting of the Steel Corporation directors next week. On Tuesday the Steel Corporation will announce its volume of unfilled orders. A reduction of about 100 tons is expected.

The firm of Clark, Griffith & McWain has been formed. Charles A. Clark is a member of the Boston Stock Exchange. Messrs. Griffith and McWain were members of the Boston curb. Their offices will occupy offices in the State Mutual Building, No. 50 Congress street.

The local curb exchange firm of Charles A. Daly & Co., has removed its offices to room 417, No. 60 State street.

Frank P. Knight has been chosen president of the National Mining Exploration company, with William W. Williams vice-president and Philip Hichborn secretary and treasurer. A directorate has been chosen, organized as follows: Henry L. Chapman, Frank P. Knight, John W. Larkin, James H. Lockwood, H. L. Winchester, William W. Williams and Frank A. Woodward.

THE MOST PICTURESQUE WEDDING will be described in detail in the Sunday AMERICAN.

MONEY ARRIVES TOO LATE, CHILDREN DIE

NEW YORK, Jan. 7.—Mrs. Anna Pele, wife of a machinist in Chicago, who came here from Gallela eight weeks ago with her three children, will return to that city sad indeed. The others, two little girls, are dead at the quarantine hospital. The woman did not have the money required to enter the country when she arrived and was held at Ellis Island until her husband could be heard from. The little girls were stricken with scarlet fever, while there were several cases on the island at the time, and were removed to the hospital, where they died. Mrs. Pele has now received the needed money from her husband and is to come too late. She must go back to Gallela with her nine-year-old son, who has been refused admittance because of disease.

INDICT VERMONT MAN FOR KILLING

WOODSTOCK, Vt., Jan. 7.—The Grand Jury in session in Windsor County court has returned two true bills against Romulus Iacchoeci, charging the murder and robbery of Dominick Schiefini, at Bellows Falls, Vt., last August. Iacchoeci is held in Philadelphia for robbery, and extradition papers will be secured at once. The remains of the Frenchmen found a skeleton in the woods and a sum of money which he had was not found, and Iacchoeci's wife declared that the men were employed by the Boston & Maine railroad and the murdered man has a wife and several children living in West Lebanon, N. H.

BOY AVIATOR MAKES NEW WORLD'S RECORD

CHARLESTON, S. C., Jan. 7.—Jimmy Wahr, the eighteen year-old aviator, in a Curtiss 24-horsepower aeroplane made a daring flight across the Charleston harbor and out over the Atlantic ocean, breaking the world's altitude record for low-power machines. He also won a prize of $5,000 by circling over two of the forts in the fortifications on the Atlantic coast, thus demonstrating the efficacy of the arrangement of sand in the case of war. He covered a distance of about twenty-five miles in fifty-four minutes.

QUARTER BILLION FIRE LOSS IN 1910

CHICAGO, Jan. 7.—Statistics made public to-day show that losses by fire in the United States and Canada in 1910 amounted to $234,470,650, or about $30,000,000 more than the losses in 1909. December losses were exceptionally heavy, aggregating $21,528,000.

MARKET RALLIES AFTER A SLUMP

NEW YORK, Jan. 7.—The closing of the Carnegie Trust Company caused a slump in the stock market shortly after the opening to-day and heavy selling caused several of the standard stocks to shade off fractionally from their opening prices which were below the closing of yesterday.

Union Pacific was the leader of the standard group, opening at 73 and within the first twenty minutes moving up to 173¾.

Shortly after the stock shaded off to within a fraction of its opening quotation. Eight thousand shares of Reading were sold in one group shortly after the opening at 153½. Later the price shaded off ¼ of a point. The stock closed at 154 yesterday.

In the first half hour 3,500 shares of Steel common were sold at 73¾, a decline of ⅝ over night.

The greatest loss in the early trading was second in Canadian Pacific, which dropped 1¾ points in the first twenty minutes and Missouri Pacific, which fell back to 46, a net loss of 2 points.

Trading on the curb started briskly, with a few of the more important issuing up fractional gains. Later the market in them became irregular and the early gains were wiped out.

The general tone toward the close became strong and active, and the quotations of practically the entire list rose to new high prices for the present session.

EDITORIAL PAGE OF THE BOSTON AMERICAN BOSTON, JANUARY 7, 1911

BOSTON AMERICAN

80 AND 82 SUMMER ST., BOSTON, JANUARY 7, 1911

VOTE RIGHT for the City Council Next Tuesday

The citizens of Boston will choose three members of their City Council next Tuesday. This is an important duty.

The government of his city affects the citizen MORE even than the government of his State. The city spends MORE of the money he pays in taxes, than the State or nation, and it provides MORE for his comfort, protection and convenience.

The City Council under the new charter has an important and responsible part to play in the city government. The public watch the deliberations and action of the City Council with less interest than they deserve. For this reason it is important to select GOOD MEN who will do well without being watched.

Unfortunately the present municipal election is barren of all interest. No government was ever wisely selected by default. This is the tendency of elections in off years.

It was a risky experiment of the new charter, the wisdom of which the AMERICAN has always doubted. However, the experiment is on trial. The AMERICAN wishes it every success, and will do its best to make it succeed.

Therefore, this newspaper urges the citizens of Boston to take a little time to consider the character and records of the candidates for the City Council.

ABOVE ALL the people of Boston ought to consider the record and character of Frank A. Goodwin of East Boston. This young man ought to be elected, not only as a reward for meritorious service in a former City Council, but for the sake of the city. In East Boston, which knows him best, Mr. Goodwin last year received the largest vote ever given to any candidate for any office. Not in a long time has a man contributed a greater service to Boston than Mr. Goodwin, when, with courage, skill and thoroughness, but in temperate and convincing language, he exposed those RICH TAX DODGERS who had been giving so much attention to the civic morals of other people that they had forgotten their own.

THESE MEN were never able to make an effective answer to Mr. Goodwin. They scoffed and ridiculed and paid the taxes they ought to have paid before, but they did not answer him. These men are now attempting to wreak their vengeance upon Mr. Goodwin through the Good Government Association. That body could well be in better business than working off the spleen of men who DODGE THEIR TAXES.

Mr. Goodwin was an INDEPENDENT in the City Council and he is an INDEPENDENT in this campaign. Mr. Voter, be INDEPENDENT enough to elect him, in spite of both political machines. You need such a man more than he needs you.

Two men are to be elected on the School Committee next Tuesday. If the people of Boston are satisfied with the great improvements which have been introduced by the present School Committee, they will elect Dr. Leen and Mr. Corcoran, who are pledged to continue this policy.

You Must Supply the Moral of This Story—If There Is One

It Tells of a Wise Man Who Decided That It Was Useless to Try to Teach Others

Copyright, 1911, by American Journal Examiner

Senator La Follette's weekly reprints a story about a wise man of the East who started out to teach, and made up his mind NOT to teach. This is how the story goes:

On the first day the wise man appeared in the market place, mounted a platform, announced the subject of his discourse in a loud voice, and gathered the people about him.

Before beginning his teaching, however, he said to the crowd: "Do you know anything about the subject concerning which I intend to speak?"

And they all said "NO."

"Very well," said the wise man, "then there is no use in my talking to you about a subject concerning which you know nothing"—and he went home.

The people were sad and discouraged, for they revered the wise man.

They were happy when he returned the next day, climbed on his little platform and began once more: "Do you know anything about the subject on which I mean to speak?"

The people replied: "Yes, we all know all about it."

"Very well," said the wise man, "if you all know all about it, it would be a waste of your time for me to tell you about it." And so he went home again.

On the third day, when he appeared, the people thought that they were ready for him, and that at last they would enjoy the benefit of his wise teachings.

He asked this question, "Do you know about the subject which I intend to discuss?" and the answer was:

"Some of us know about it, and some of us do not."

The sage got down from his platform, remarking, "In that case those of you that understand this subject will kindly explain it to those that do not understand it; there is no use in my wasting my time," and he went home once more and stayed home.

Has that old story a moral, and if it has, what IS the moral?

We should like to offer a suitable reward for the best answer to this question. But we do not want to give our readers the trouble of writing many thousands of letters, nor ourselves the trouble of reading them. So we invite our readers to discuss the matter at home among themselves.

Suppose that YOU had taken this story for the text of a sermon that you mean to preach, what would you say about it?

Would you say that the wise man was really a fool, that he should have been glad even of a faint possibility of helping other men, should have told what he knew, doing his best in the telling, and left results to fate?

Or would you say that the wise man really was wise; that it is foolish after all for one man to try to teach another, that we must all learn for ourselves by talking to each other, studying in the hard school of experience, and in the slow school of written books?

Father and mothers with growing boys and girls will find it interesting to read this story to the youngsters, and ask them what THEY think about it. Such questions stimulate mental activity, and mental activity is THE MOTHER OF FUTURE SUCCESS.

BOOKLAND

EDWIN MARKHAM

Rosewell Field and John Vance Cheney, Associate Editors

SOMEBODY who wants to spread a contagion of good ought to distribute broadcast in the shops and offices of the country some thousands of copies of Arnold Bennett's pervasive little book, "How to Live on Twenty-four Hours a Day."

This is a dissertation addressed mostly to clerks—a class whose duties often make them more cogs in the business machine. It is designed to spur such workers to take an interest in life, to look upon their work not as a mere blinking round of perfunctory duty, with a dull sleep at the end of the dull day; not as a mere galvanized trance, but as a round full of interest and wonder, full of desire to be and to do—a round that makes one realize the pleasure and privilege of being alive.

Mr. Bennett does not take up the question of the social effort needed to create conditions of leisure and aspiration for all. He merely tells the average clerk how to get something out of his life as it is.

And Mr. Bennett's book is not a preachment by a rhapsodist, with precepts that can be followed only by the leisure classes. It is a thesis by a man who has been a clerk himself, and knows the full measure of work and weariness borne by the great mass of the people who make the wheels of the world go round.

He talks to those who say that they are too rushed and too tired to do anything but to keep the chain of labor that makes a living for themselves and family. He tells them how to take the minutes outside shop and sleep and get the good out of them for the inner man. He demands that the worker shall rebel against using all his powers upon the ordinary day's work of earning a living.

Mr. Bennett does not merely set out a course of reading—the ordinary method of our "uplift" advisers. He shows you how to use your mind, how to get it going on some of the problems that are seething around us, ethical, economical, scientific. He shows, in short, how to live mentally, instead of vegetating; and how to find happiness (the application of principles to conduct) instead of being content with mere animal response to environment.

We agree with almost all that Mr. Bennett says; but demur stoutly to his assertion that Herbert Spencer is the greatest mind that has ever existed. Spencer's reach toward the Infinite was obstructed by his materialism; so he is only an Eiffel Tower instead of a Mount Everest.

Spencer measures up only to the shoulders of such prophets as Thomas Carlyle and John Ruskin. Spencer was a great fact collector and sorter, but he stirs only the intellect. A man is great only when he arouses and elevates the soul. To do this he must affirm the spiritual reality, much man's vision with some ray from that "light that never was on sea or land."

Poems Delicate and Aloof

JOHN HAY'S daughter can write. Not every page of her "Herbs and Apples" carries the authentic tang and scent of the Mount of Green. But there are certain poems in the book which are so packed with meaning, so touched with fantasy, so colored by feeling as to prove that Helen Hay Whitney has had entrance at the difficult ancient gate, where one must earn the consent of Apollo.

Mrs. Whitney makes no ambitious reaches. Hers is not the peak of song, but rather the hidden nook. Her themes are aloof, unexpected. They start up as the wind in the west, and quick as the stirring of the leaves or the rifting of the sunset, they stop again.

Perhaps the finest thing in the slender book is the sonnet, "The Wife Speaks." This poem reaches the delicate level of Alice Meynell's "Renunciation." This is the Whitney sonnet:

Not all those women you have loved and left,
Oh, my Beloved, can stir my jealousy;
Nor the fleshly lures which you forgot for me,
For my heart's fingers made by life most deft
Have mended all the rents their arrows cleft
And from their enchantments set you free.

But one is my despair, and only she,
The one who loved you, hopeless and bereft,
How can I give as much, who hold your heart
As she unloved who gave with scorn of gain?
So do the angels; at her name I smart
And feel a sordid bargainer who gives
For fair exchange; I cannot feel the pain,
I am defeated by her while she lives.

The Final Prose Volumes of Fiona Macleod.

SOME weeks ago I spoke in these columns of the first three volumes of the uniform edition of the works of Fiona Macleod (William Sharp), now being published by Mrs. William Sharp. Three more volumes have now been added to this definitive edition, completing the prose of the Fiona Macleod cycle. These volumes are "The Silence of Amor," "The Winged Destiny" and "The Divine Adventure, Notes and Studies in Spiritual History." A look at the titles of these books gives a life of William Sharp.

The history of these strange Fiona Macleod writings is one of the psychological puzzles of literary annals. The sketches, romances and poems now given to the world between the year 1894 and 1900, professedly by a young ardent Highland woman aloof from the world of men, passionately pouring out her heart in the silence of cliff and moor and sea, and desiring only to be left alone in her mystic solitudes.

Only a half dozen friends (all pledged not to tell) knew the secret—knew that William Sharp, busy, successful journalist and critic, of London, was one and the same with the delicate, elusive personality—this woman-soul speaking in delicate dream the words of Fiona Macleod.

These tales and sketches were charged with the Celtic glamour, with remembrances of the Gaelic's ancient wisdom and obliterated symbols. They were charged with the old Druidic, Gaelic love of the wild, sad, fleeting wonder of ocean and her shores. No other hand has ever written of nature with more noble intimacy. Not even Ruskin, honoring the grasses and the clouds, pays more exquisite tribute to the unquiet beauty of earth and sky.

Fiona Macleod gives the wild beauty of the peasant tales in terms transcending the power of any peasant of her isles. But she does this because she adds art to heart, which is the eternal privilege and necessity of genius. Up in the high Sierras, I have seen the waters of a cataract plunge downward, colorless and cold; then, under the sudden burst of the sun, they have turned to a dance of rainbows, a web of woven iris, so the homely legend and folk-lore of the Celt have taken on the color of immortal beauty under the art-magic of Fiona Macleod.

Some Adjustments of Conscience

ALICE Brown works out a goodly tangle of problems in her new story, "John Winterbourne's Family." She finds a ground of compromise between a husband who thinks musing and poetry reading the real things of life and a wife who considers a society career in art as the acme of existence. She shows a club-befuddled lady letting a new home run without a mistress, a young girl spoiled by the insincerity of society.

But the New England conscience saves them all in the end. They pull up or down for their duty and so their way to better things. The book is written with acuteness of understanding and indifference of style; but the sorrows of the characters bear remote relation to the woes of real life and do not press upon the reader's heart with a sense of the pain in mortal things.

Mary Mears's New Novel

MARY MEARS'S story, "The Breath of the Runners," like Susan Glaspell's "Glory of the Conquered," takes high place as a finely framed "first book," promising good work to come.

Miss Mears has now published another serious novel, "The Bird in the Box." This author always does her work with a sort of consecration, with a desire to express in the most vital and beautiful way the highest truth in art and in conduct.

This new story symbolizes life as imprisoning the singing, winging soul of men. While there are in the book certain little effects of strain and uneveness, still there is also a pleasing impression of eager spirits beating against the bars trying to find their freedom. The book is set in the present time in Maine and New York city; and, in the story, various persons, old and young, swayed by the long push of ancestry as well as by the urge of immediate circumstances, all meet the old question of duty—or happiness versus duty.

Shall they seek the pleasure of the hour or wait for the new, higher joy that rises out of duty?

The heroine sums up the wisdom of the book—devotion in renunciation—in these words:

Some Good Night Stories for the Little Folks

"DADDY'S Good Night Stories" is a book of stories for the wee ones, written by Farmer Smith, and illustrated with pictures blithe as the text, done in black and white, by William R. Bell.

Farmer Smith's stories have all been tested and acclaimed by small and interested audiences, and older folks will also approve of their pleasant humor, their friendly spirit and their piquant interwoven with creatures of air and earth and water.

These good night nature stories are more in the spirit of Hans Andersen than of Barrie; so they stir the feelings of fancy and make the child at home in the world about it.

Parents whose invention and ingenuity flag sometimes at the continual demand, "Tell us a story," will find here a good tonic to relieve the strain. "Daddy's Good Night Stories" is the recommendation for pleasant farewells for the little folks in that doorway where they are making ready to embark for Dreamland.

October Vagabonds

WHEN Mr. Le Gallienne is in the mood he says such pretty things about nature that she takes him by the hand and leads him along her quiet glade as if he had been born in some picturesque shack beside them. Fine words from this author—we are always sure of them—and they are worth while. Sometimes we get, too, fine imaginings. Whether the two can be double or single, we can't afford to skip it.

In the present volume the author, weary of the city, finds his way into the country in—apparently—September. Here he proceeds he reveals in the melancholy joys of Autumntide. An artist turns up shortly and the two—friends—enjoy the personal performance of a walk, a long walk, back to the unspoiled. Observing and chatting, they trudge along, with many incidents by the way, among which the author's pen works over into characteristic passages. So encouraging is the poet to him that he brings the Muse to put her lips to a cup of buttermilk—

"Its white and innocent as doves,
White bosom on a Summer's day.
And fragrant as the hawthorn grove."

"Mary Ware in Texas"

"MARY WARE IN TEXAS," by Anne Fellows Johnston, continues the adventures of Mary Ware, the heroine of the tenth and latest volume in the famous "Little Colonel" series. "Mary Ware: The Little Colonel's Chum." The new book takes up the life of Mary two months after the ending of the last story, and carries her to Texas, where she spends the Winter with her mother and Jack, in San Antonio and the chill country.

The Farm Book

THE story of Bob and Betty on the visit to their uncle's farm describes, for the benefit and delectation of the children, the more prominent processes of farm life. The trills of fancy are nowhere apparent, the entire narrative being given up to happy actualities. The book is hardly more interesting than it is corrective, in its simple, wholesale faithfulness to the facts.

The story is told in words and in skilful drawings; many of these last in color. It is a series of honest country pleasures in covers.
